

ARMISTICE IN CHICAGO'S STREET RAILWAY STRIKE

Attorney Clarence Darrow Empowered by the Carmen's Union to Negotiate a Settlement With the Company—He Meets the Railway's Representatives

IN THE MEANTIME ALL HOSTILE ACTION CEASES

Both Peace Envoys Have Full Authority to Act for Their Clients, and Any Agreement Made by Them Will Be Binding

CHICAGO, Nov. 20.—A new step toward peace in the railway strike was taken today. An armistice has been declared by representatives of both sides pending its result.

Attorney Clarence Darrow called upon Col. E. R. Bliss, general counsel for the company. Mr. Darrow said he was empowered by the men to negotiate a settlement for them.

"Why can't you and I get together on this?" asked Mr. Darrow of Col. Bliss. "I don't know of any reason why we cannot," said Col. Bliss.

"What basis would you suggest?" Mr. Darrow was asked.

"The only point that we absolutely cannot modify is the right of the company to hire and discharge its men," said Col. Bliss, emphatically. The attorneys then agreed on a cessation of strike hostilities pending an attempt by them to settle the strike.

The company agrees not to hire any more men to take the places of the strikers, in return for which concession, the union, through Mr. Darrow, agrees to cease active strike measures for the present time.

Attorneys Darrow and Bliss and National President Mahon of the Street Railway Employees' Association proceeded to Mayor Harrison's office immediately afterward.

They were joined by Mayor Harrison for half an hour. The two attorneys then left with the declared intention of going over the details of the situation together.

In the event of Attorney Bliss and Darrow being able to reach an agreement, the strike, it was stated, will be called off at once. If they failed, the result of the conference, it was said, would be given to the aldermanic committee, who would attempt to find a means for overcoming the point of this settlement. Both attorneys seemed to have authority from their clients and their action was expected to be binding.

The chief difficulty to be overcome was said to be the question of the routing of the cars and the invariable money in the office. Col. Bliss produced charts, time tables and car schedules and they were discussed at some length.

SENT WATCHES TO DEAD MEN

Ira C. Young, Lawyer, and Dr. Edward Rowley Face Federal Trial on Fraud Charge

Fraudulent use of the mails for the purpose of obtaining money from the relatives of dead persons upon false representations is the charge upon which Ira C. Young, an attorney, and Dr. Edward Rowley are being tried in the United States District Court.

Under the name of the Unique Jewelry Co., with offices in the Jefferson building at Olive street and Jefferson avenue, the two men are accused of carrying on an extraordinary business by taking advantage of the ignorance of some families manifest concerning the personal affairs of departed members.

Upon reading of the death of an eligible person, the firm would send to his family, it is alleged, a notice from the jewelry company stating that his watch was finished and that by paying the sum remaining it would be sent him.

Then an express package would be sent the dead man containing a most inferior watch, upon which charges for $10 or more would be marked. C. O. D. by which means the government charges the defendants with having secured considerable money.

H. A. Wilkie of Chicago, a cousin of Chief Wilkie of the United States Secret Service, was one of the victims who recognized fraud in an instant and notified his cousin at Washington.

Mr. Wilkie was an important witness for the United States Friday morning. He testified that the Chicago newspapers contained notices of the death of his father, Daniel O. Wilkie, on Aug. 9, and that a few days afterward he received a postal addressed to his father, stating that the Unique Jewelry Co. of St. Louis had finished the watch and would deliver it upon receiving the amount remaining due.

THE COLD SPELL IS BROKEN

Warmer Friday Night and Saturday and Cloudy, but No Snow

Only the ice man will leave ice on the sidewalk Saturday morning if the weather man has read the signs aright. According to the forecast issued Friday morning, 34 degrees will be the lowest point registered by the thermometer Friday night. This is the official prophecy.

"Partly cloudy and warmer Friday night and Saturday. Fresh southerly winds. The minimum temperature Friday night will be about 34 degrees."

The forecast is based on the report from Haver, Mont., which has sprung into prominence as a cold wave center, that the thermometer which registered 30 degrees below zero Thursday morning showed 8 degrees above Friday morning, and the heat-oppressed inhabitants turned on their electric fans.

General cloudiness prevails over the country, but only on the Pacific coast is rain reported.

The lowest that the official St. Louis thermometer could register Friday morning was 26, and it did not get to that low mark until 6 o'clock. The readings were:

JUDGE HOCKADAY DIES AT HOSPITAL

Jurist Who Presided at Edward Butler's Trial Was Well Known Throughout Missouri

ONCE SOUGHT GOVERNORSHIP

Judge John A. Hockaday, judge of the Ninth Judicial Circuit, who has been a prominent jurist in Missouri for 20 years, and presiding judge in the trial of Edward Butler at Columbia one year ago, died Friday morning at 5 o'clock at Mullin's Hospital.

His wife and their son, Gustavus Hockaday, were with him at the time of his death. The body will be taken to Fulton, Mo., home of Judge Hockaday, for burial, but the arrangements for the funeral have not been completed.

Judge Hockaday's health broke down completely the past summer, after he had devoted himself with too great assiduity to his duties as judge of one of the largest circuits in the state.

A few days ago, at the orders of his physicians, he entered Mullin's Hospital, and for a time it seemed that he was improving, although it was always realized that his recovery would be a tedious development. Within the past week, however, Judge Hockaday was on the bench for 20 years and enjoyed a high reputation for ability and inviolable honesty. In 1888 he was a candidate for the Democratic nomination for governor. He was about 64 years old.

BELLEVILLE WOMAN WEDS A NOBLEMAN

"Andrew Kraus" Is Really Baron Von Frieherr Westenhausen, but His Bride Didn't Know It

Mrs. Annaliese Bechtel of Belleville, who is to make her third matrimonial venture Saturday in East St. Louis, did not know until informed by a Post-Dispatch correspondent that she was to marry a nobleman.

The license issued Friday morning gives the name of the bridegroom as Andrew Kraus, but the bride's name is Baron Von Frieherr Westenhausen. The baron calls himself Andrew Kraus for convenience.

Marriage License Clerk Winkler's smile at the name brought out the explanation, that the full name was used only on state occasions.

The baron has been in the United States most of the 42 years of his life. He made the acquaintance of Mrs. Bechtel before her marriage, when he boarded with her mother, Mrs. Bechtel.

He is now employed as a roundhouse fireman in East St. Louis and renewed the acquaintance with Mrs. Bechtel Nov. 17, when he went to Belleville to assist in the celebration of "German day." He proposed last Sunday. The time and place of the wedding have not been definitely settled.

LEBAUDY AIRSHIP BLOWS UP

Pilot and Engineer Escaped Uninjured—Aeronaut Lebaudy Was Not Abroad

PARIS, Nov. 20.—The Lebaudy airship, descending today near the balloon grounds at Meudon, struck a tree and blew up. The whole airship was completely destroyed, but the occupants, a pilot and an engineer, were uninjured.

M. Lebaudy was not on board. It was this balloon that made such a famous voyage a few days ago, sailing 55 miles straight against the wind, and answering the helm like a ship on the water. The Lebaudy balloon is of irregular cigar shape, approaching in outline to the keel of a yacht. The car, which is attached to the balloon by 20 small cables, looks something like a float. It can be used separately as a parachute or aeroplane, and is suspended by seven ropes from the main cable. It is calculated to hold four persons, and weighs nearly 1,000 lbs.

The propelling force is a Daimler-Mercedes forty-horsepower motor, which can be turned on or off at will. It can be used vertically, to move ahead or horizontally, in order to descend, or one can be used with the other, to turn.

REPORT ON FAIR GOES TO CONGRESS

8000-Word Document Gives Full Details of Work Accomplished and to Be Done

SHOWS FAVORABLE RESULTS

Paper Is Signed by Ex-Senator Carter, Chairman of the National Commission

A report of the progress on the building of the World's Fair, with a comprehensive review of everything so far accomplished and an outline of what is yet to be done, was submitted to Congress, now in session at the national capital, by the National World's Fair Commission Friday.

This report, the first that has been made public by the national commission, is an 8000-word document, signed by ex-Senator Carter, president of the commission, and all the other members of that body. It is addressed to the President of the United States.

The report comments favorably upon the work of the exposition and outlines the tremendous expenditures which have been and will be made in the construction of this Fair. Details as to the buildings, the exhibit plans, exploitation in foreign lands, support from foreign governments, the part that women are to play in the exposition and all other phases of the development are given clearly.

The report says in part: "Foreign participation in the Louisiana Purchase Exposition will far exceed what was originally contemplated in that direction. Nation after nation has accepted the invitation to take part, until now virtually the whole civilized world has signified its intention of being adequately represented. The World's Fair in St. Louis in 1904 will therefore be a great universal exposition in all the name implies. The requests for foreign courtesies for increased space have been so urgent and insistent that, were they acceded to, the present roofed area would have to be considerably enlarged. It is thoroughly impracticable at this late date to meet all the demands in this respect."

"The United States government has appropriated funds for a greater display than has ever been made by federal authority at an exposition. The construction of the two buildings which will accommodate the indoor exhibits of the government has been progressed to the point where the staff work is being put on. These two structures, one for the main exhibit and the other exclusively for the fisheries display, cost approximately half a million dollars. The total cost of the exposition is estimated at $15,000,000. Of the first sum named, the federal government has contributed $10,000,000. The remainder for building purposes."

Woman Will Play an Active Part

"Women will stand on an equality with man at the Louisiana Purchase Exposition. No special classification in exhibits is made for woman's work, and no building, as at Chicago, but in all the manifold ramifications of the Exposition work women are participating. Women will hold a place on the juries of award. Woman sculptors and painters have done some of the finest work on the Exposition buildings. Women have assisted in the collection of exhibits and in the exploitation of the Exposition. There are even women concessionaires and a woman contractor competed with men in the actual physical construction of the Exposition."

"Concessions, which on a close estimate, will entail an expenditure or investment for buildings and installations, of close to $5,000,000 have already been granted by the Exposition company. Of this amount about $450,000 will be expended for restaurant buildings and installations. This includes only those restaurants having no 'show' in connection. Concessions, already granted for the sale of souvenirs at the Exposition will entail an expenditure of $100,000."

HER SIGHT RESTORED AT 94

Aged Woman, Believed to Be Doomed to Blindness, Now Reads Fine Print Without Glasses

Special to The Post-Dispatch.

DERBY, Conn., Nov. 20.—Mrs. Sally M. Pratt, who for 25 years has been scarcely able to read with the strongest glasses, owing to her advanced age, has suddenly found her sight restored in her 94th year. She had become almost blind of late, being forced to abandon sewing and all reading but the coarsest print. She was preparing to end her years in blindness.

A few days ago she picked up a newspaper to read the large headlines. Continuing down the column she was surprised to notice that the fine print looked large and blurred. She removed her glasses, and, to her joy, found she could readily distinguish the type.

After several days' practice she can now read the newspapers and her fine print Bible with ease and has discarded her glasses. She also threads needles with the 'sake' eye.

Doctors pronounce the case one of rare instances of what is termed "second sight." They say it occurs only with persons whose age is close to the century mark.

HAS THIS 11-YEAR OLD GIRL A MANIA THAT MAKES HER STEAL?

VIOLA HEIBEL

MOTHER SAYS CHILD IS A KLEPTOMANIAC

Strange Case of Little Viola Heibel Mystifies the Police Authorities of Belleville

CONFESSES TO MANY THEFTS

Bright-Faced, Bright-Witted Girl Says She "Just Can't Help Taking Things"

In 11-year-old Viola Heibel the Belleville authorities have a problem which is as difficult to solve as the disposition of all other criminal cases.

Although the police agree that she is the youngest and most precocious shoplifter and till-tapper in St. Clair county, the girl seeks to persuade them that she is not responsible for her acts.

"I steal," she says, "because something makes me. I see pretty things and take them. Even when I try to resist I can't help it."

Mrs. George Heibel, Viola's mother, is positive that the girl is a kleptomaniac. She has learned, she says, that the child at times cannot resist the temptation to appropriate whatever takes her fancy.

According to her mother Viola is a psychological study. She is truthful in her pliancy, but that which relates to her pilfering. She is abnormally bright and shrewd. She is industrious about home and assists her mother in caring for the nine other children. Every gift she receives is shared with her brothers and sisters.

Yet she steals with the finesse of a finished shoplifter. Money, candies, ribbons and trinkets attract her most. She has confessed most of the thefts in which she has participated.

Chief of Police Yackel is somewhat incredulous of Viola's statement that she cannot restrain her inclination to steal. He criticizes with an astuteness beyond her years.

The testimony of an alienist may be necessary to reach a decision.

After her arrest Viola was "sweetened" by a police officer and read the method of operation of the store. She was given a comprehensive study of habits and customs of a thief. Every gift she receives is shared with her brothers and sisters.

ARNOLD'S VICTIMS HAVE TURN NOW

THE ORIGINAL "GET-RICH-QUICK" MAN IS ON TRIAL FOR GRAND LARCENY

CASE THE FIRST OF EIGHT

Arnold Appears Unconcerned in the Courtroom—No Witnesses for Defense

At 2 o'clock Friday afternoon the examination of witnesses for the state was begun in the case charging E. J. Arnold, the original "get-rich-quick" man of St. Louis, with grand larceny.

The case was begun in the criminal division of the circuit court before Judge McDonald at the opening of court Friday morning, and the preliminaries were finished shortly before noon, when a recess was taken until 2 o'clock.

The trial of the grand larceny charge is preliminary to eight other cases in which Arnold is charged with obtaining money under false pretenses.

Arnold was in court, quiet and seemingly unconcerned, as usual. It was announced that there would be no witnesses for the defense.

The witnesses for the state are: Mrs. William Stevers of 173 Koeln street; Alice Graham of 527 Page boulevard; Mrs. M. P. Koch of 2315 Thomas street; E. F. Yehling, a postal clerk, and George P. Fout, who was one of Arnold's right-hand men during the operation of the great raffle swindle.

Most of the witnesses are people who invested in Arnold's great "co-operative" scheme, by which great fortunes for small investments were promised through operations on the race tracks of the country.

COURTHOUSE PAINTINGS FALL

Loosened Plaster Gives Way in the Dome and Panels Are Destroyed

The large circle under the dome of the courthouse was roped off Friday to protect persons having business in the building from the dangers of plastering that was falling from the ceiling of the high dome.

When the janitors reached the building Friday morning they found the floor covered with the plastering that had fallen during the night, much of it from the painted panels. Examination showed that other plastering was loose and that part of the building was made inaccessible.

The condition of the building, so soon after the completion of repairs costing $20,000, excited much comment as to the need for further improvements on the best architectural structure of the West.

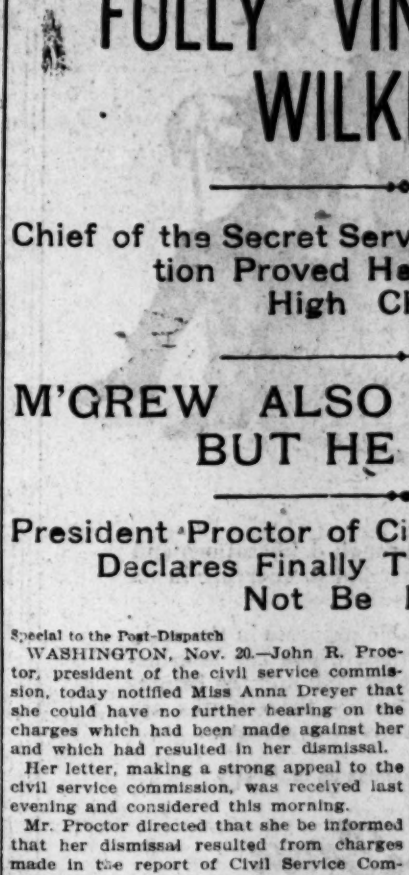

WIFE OPPOSED HIS HABITS

Petitioner for Divorce Says She Wouldn't Let Him Smoke His Pipe or Read Newspapers

Alleging that his wife refused to allow him to smoke a pipe and read the newspapers, contending that those were habits of the devil, Robert J. Caldwell seeks a divorce from Nora Caldwell, to whom he was married Aug. 23, 1898. The couple separated, according to Caldwell's petition, Sept. 1, 1903.

Mr. Caldwell avers that his wife is of a deeply religious disposition, and that she preferred to take up evangelistic work rather than to attend to her household duties. The petition was filed in the circuit court Friday.

MISS DREYER WAS FULLY VINDICATED

Chief of the Secret Service Says His Investigation Proved Her a Woman of High Character.

M'GREW ALSO VINDICATED BUT HE IS DISCHARGED

President Proctor of Civil Service Commission Declares Finally That the Case Will Not Be Reopened.

Special to the Post-Dispatch.

WASHINGTON, Nov. 20.—John R. Proctor, president of the civil service commission, today notified Miss Anna Dreyer that she could have no further hearing on the charges which had been made against her and which had resulted in her dismissal.

Her letter, making a strong appeal to the civil service commission, was received last evening and considered this morning.

Mr. Proctor directed that she be informed that her dismissal resulted from charges made in the report of Civil Service Commissioner Foulke and that the board would regard the investigation made by Mr. Foulke as sufficient hearing for her.

In the letter it was also said that the charges which were made against her brother-in-law, and which resulted in an independent investigation, had nothing whatsoever to do with her dismissal, and that, so far as the commission knew, the treasury matter had nothing to do with her case.

Former Civil Service Commissioner Foulke said this morning that he was satisfied with the result of his investigation that Miss Dreyer had been engaged in the conspiracy to get Postmaster Baumhoff out of office.

Proctor Consulted Foulke

He said that this was established beyond a doubt.

Civil Service Commissioner Proctor called upon Mr. Foulke before he determined what answer he would make in the Dreyer appeal to him. Mr. Foulke told him that there was no doubt that she had engaged in the conspiracy as charged.

"We can do nothing else," said Mr. Proctor to the St. Louis Post-Dispatch correspondent. "The postmaster-general instructs the postmaster at St. Louis to dismiss her for the good of the service. The report of our own commission is to the effect that she was engaged in a conspiracy to secure the dismissal of one of her superiors. That is sufficient reason for her dismissal."

When it comes her appeal for a hearing, Mr. Foulke said this statement is before us. We have given it the most careful consideration. We feel that we know the whole truth, and there is no need of another hearing, to secure justice for her, or for the good of the service.

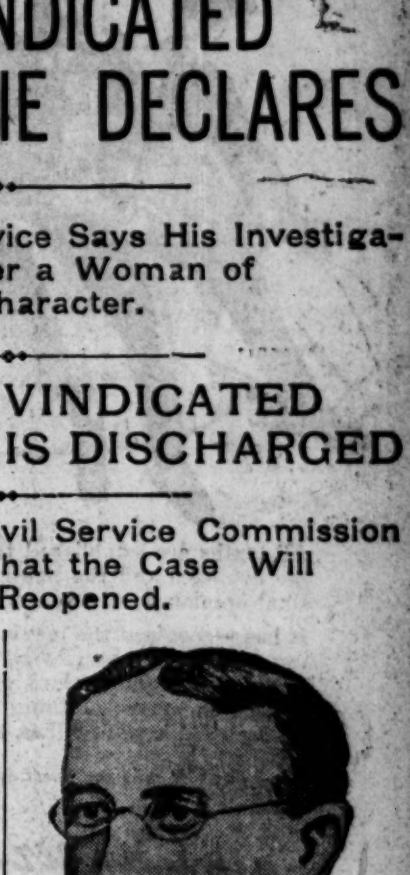

"Miss Dreyer made her statement to Mr. Foulke and this statement is before us. We have given it the most careful consideration. We feel that we know the whole truth, and there is no need of another hearing, to secure justice for her, or for the good of the service."

"As to her claim that reports investigated by a treasury employee had something to do with her dismissal we know nothing. There is nothing in the record to show this. It had nothing to do with her dismissal. The other cause was amply sufficient and clearly established."

Wilkie's Statement

"The commission can go no further under the rules."

REV. BOYD TELLS OF HIS PART IN DREYER CASE

REVEREND W. W. BOYD TELLS OF HIS PART IN ANNA DREYER CASE.

I do not recollect exactly, but it is my impression that my attention was first called to the charges against Postmaster Baumhoff in the spring of 1902.

The occasion was this: A young woman, whom I regarded as one of the most excellent members of my church, called me up over the telephone one morning and asked if she could have a private talk during the day.

At the time I was stopped by a father-in-law's call in West-minister place. I replied that I would be glad to see her, and according to appointment she came, but, to my surprise, accompanied by two men.

The fact that her companions had been more or less identified with ward politics made me rather skeptical as the young woman's mission, and when they had stated the purpose of it my suspicions were at further aroused.

These gentlemen explained that they desired to enlist my services in presenting to President Roosevelt charges which had been made and certified to by employees of the postoffice regarding their superior, Mr. Baumhoff. They seemed to believe that, being a minister of the gospel, I could more easily secure the ear of the President and obtain from him a hearing that would bring about the reinstatement of Baumhoff in the St. Louis postmaster; they offered to pay all my expenses.

They mentioned that President Roosevelt was a man of high moral character, that he desired the subordination of the government.

Rock Island Wins Rate War

CHICAGO, Nov. 20.—The troubles of the western roads over the division of the immigrant business have been settled, and in consequence the Rock Island will come back into the Western Passenger Association and rejoin the Western Immigrant Rate Bureau. The Rock Island withdrew from these organizations shortly on the completion of its new El Paso route because of its demand for a share of the immigrant business over the new route was refused by the other transcontinental lines. Its competition has caused loss of revenue to all lines. After meetings lasting two weeks both the Southern Pacific and the Santa Fe have agreed to give up a portion of their percentage of the business in order to allow the Rock Island a reasonable share for its El Paso route.

All truths are established through deliberations and the evidence and the public mind is unerring in its final opinion upon any contention.

DESPERADO HORN DIES ON SCAFFOLD

Hanged for the Murder of a Fourteen-Year-Old Boy in Wyoming

FRIENDS FAILED TO SAVE HIM

Something of the Record of the Man Who Was Once a Daring Scout

CHEYENNE, Wyo., Nov. 20.—Tom Horn, the desperado and murderer, was hanged at 11 o'clock today. No attempt at rescue was made and the execution passed off quietly.

Gov. Chatterton was aroused before 8 o'clock this morning by friends of Horn, who again sought a reprieve. The governor listened to the arguments of Horn's friends for some time and then said emphatically: "There is no use, gentlemen; this execution will take place at the time set by the law. I will not interfere in the case. This is final."

No less than a dozen attempts were made during the afternoon of yesterday and last night to have the governor delay the execution for even a few days. He had but one answer for all, and that was that the law must take its course.

Horn has apparently been hopeful all along that in some manner he would escape the gallows, but last night he wrote a farewell letter to John C. Coble, the manager of the Iron Mountain Cattle Co., by which he was employed for 10 years, his business being to prevent rustling or theft of cattle.

"If I go, I want John to have this letter," he said. The letter was principally devoted to saying good-by to Coble and making requests as to what should be done with property he should leave.

Tom Horn's boyhood was spent among the Indians and Mexicans, and he thoroughly imbibed the stealth, the patient watchfulness, the readiness of the one, and the suave trickery of the other.

In the account Tom Horn gave of himself he said that his mother died while he was still a baby, and that his father died while he was but a lad, leaving him to the mercy and training of Mexicans, Indians and officers of an army post. That when he was 14 years old he spoke Mexican fluently and only English enough to enable him to act as messenger and errand boy between the post and the Indians on a reservation.

According to the records of the states of Illinois and Missouri, Tom Horn, Sr., had a record that discounts that of Tom, Jr., and whether or not he trained the son in the way he would or left it to others, the fact remains that Father Horn lived in

THE ONCE FAMOUS SCOUT MET DEATH ON THE GALLOWES

TOM HORN.

Missouri until he was forced to leave the country and take refuge in British Columbia, and that he did not die until Tom was well under way as an Indian scout and had a killing or two already laid to his account. Tom Horn, Sr., belonged to a family of forgers, swindlers, and blackmailers, and with a brother-in-law, Toliver P. Craig, got the control at one time of the famous—or infamous—"Scotland County gang" of Missouri.

It is known that Tom Horn, Jr., has killed more than a dozen persons. He once served as a government scout in expeditions against the Indians, and played no small part in the Spanish-American war.

It was Horn who committed the famous theft of Gen. Shafter's cow. Horn had come to Cuba as the leader of a band of scouts. On the first day of his arrival he learned that a Cuban had presented Gen. Shafter with a cow. That night the cow found nailed to a tree in front of Shafter's tent. The animal furnished a feast for the scouts. Shafter raged and swore, but never discovered who had stolen the animal.

When Horn returned from the war he obtained a position as a private detective for the cattlemen of Montana. It was while performing this work that he is alleged to have killed Willie Nickell, 14 years old. Some time after the boy had been again Horn boasted to a man of the name of LaFors, a government detective, that he had committed the murder. It was upon this was arrested and placed on trial. It is said that every bad man has his good side. Horn fought bravely in the expedition of Capt. Emmet Crawford and Lieut. Maus into Mexico in 1885 and 1886, the object being the capture of Geronimo, the Apache outlaw.

He was one of the party which endured this toilsome journey through the wilds of Sonora, and he was present at a conference between Maus and Geronimo, when the latter agreed to present himself to Gen. Crook at Fort Bowie and talk over terms of surrender. Horn went along as chief of scouts, and his knowledge of Spanish made his services doubly valuable.

That he was active in the campaign is clearly indicated by the frequent mention of his name which is made in the narrative of Capt. Maus, among the references being a brief allusion to the wounding of the chief of scouts during a fusillade by a party of Mexicans.

The man's remarkable endurance is all that brought him out of this expedition alive. Frequently he traveled more than 100 miles a day, and for several days he wandered about without food or water. When some skirmishers found him he was almost dead. This experience, however, was tame beside one he had several years later, when he became a cowboy. In a saloon brawl he was shot in the side and the left leg. He left the village that evening without attending to the wounds, and started toward a ranch 40 miles distant. While he was traveling on the plains he fell from his horse and lay in the sand for six days. A cowboy picked him up and within three days he was back at work again.

SILVER WEDDING IS INFORMAL

Dr. Joseph Spiegelhalter and Wife Received Friends

Dr. Joseph Spiegelhalter and his wife celebrated the 25th anniversary of their marriage Thursday evening at their beautiful home, 216 Lafayette street, by an informal gathering, at which 40 friends were present.

No invitations were issued, and none but immediate friends and relatives of the old couple were present, but a great number of congratulations were received. Dr. Spiegelhalter, who is 68 years old, retired several years ago from the active practice of medicine. He has been twice married. His present wife was Miss Augusta Hoyer and his first wife Miss Bertha Schmieding.

Dr. Spiegelhalter was a member of the Fifth Missouri Regiment during the civil war. In 1864, when a wave of cholera threatened St. Louis, he was a leader in averting the "yellow death."

He was elected coroner for two terms. He is the organizer of the Liederkreis Society and the Union Club, and a prominent member of various scientific and medical societies.

Woman Obtains Divorce on Twentieth Anniversary of Wedding

On the twentieth anniversary of her marriage, Mrs. Lena Ludwig was granted a divorce from her husband, Herman C. Ludwig.

Mrs. Ludwig was married Nov. 20, 1883. She testified Friday that her husband left her Aug. 7, 1900, and that he was now in Springfield, Ill. She declared, in answer to a question from the court, that his only reason for desertion was shame for his failure to support her and their three children because of his irregular habits. Mrs. Ludwig lives at 2877 Henrietta street with a son and daughter, twins, 19 years old, and a daughter 17 years old.

Questions Hancock's Power

John Gernes, attorney for John Leonard, charged with highway robbery, attacked the right of Assistant Prosecuting Attorney Scott Hancock to sign informations, when the circuit attorney was within reach, in arguing a plea of abatement for his client before Judge Taylor Friday morning. Orrick Bishop, who represented the circuit attorney's office in the case, read the statute regarding the duties of the assistant circuit attorney being to assist his superior, and represented that to take from him this power would be to nullify the statute. Judge Taylor withheld his decision.

Fatally Hurt in Elevator

Clarence King, 22 years, a negro elevator man, employed at 1009 Lucas avenue, was expected to live as the result of an accident that aimed to result in his death. King was looking out of the elevator door and was struck on the head by the ceiling of the first floor. He fell and his neck was caught between the floor and the still moving elevator and the ceiling. He was taken to the city hospital.

CARDINAL SUES FOR LIBEL

Serafino Vanutelli Asks 10,000 Francs Damages.

(Copyright, 1902, by the Press Publishing Co.)
ROME, Nov. 14.—Cardinal Serafino Vanutelli, who was prominently mentioned as a likely successor to Leo XIII at the time of the conclave and who in his diplomatic career some time ago acted as ambassador to the United States, has brought suit for libel and damages against the Radical Belga newspaper, L'Express, at Liege. He asks for damages amounting to 10,000 francs and that the sentence imposed by the court shall compel the paper to insert its condemnation in all the Belgian and French papers.

WOULD NOT FREE HIS SONS

Spartan Mayor Did Not Let His Private Sorrows Interfere With His Public Duties
Suppose yourself to be mayor of a city, St. Louis, for instance. You have two sons and they get into trouble and are locked up in jail. You, as mayor of the city, have the power to release them with a word. What would you do? There was a mayor situated that way. He let his sons stay in jail. The position he took was that the mayor of the city had no right to let his private sorrows and his humiliations interfere with his public duties.

For this he has won the title of the Spartan Mayor. His story will be in the Sunday Post-Dispatch.

FOUND BRIDE ON CAR SEAT.

Meeting of Strangers on Trolley Ride Results in Romance

A romance which began when Charles Busseller of 401 Easton avenue squeezed himself into the last remaining seat on a crowded street car and found himself beside an unusually pretty girl, had its culmination when he and the girl were married by Rev. C. E. Ewing of the Taylor Avenue Baptist Church.

The girl was Miss Zoe Carty, whose home was at Centerville, St. Louis County, but who has been living in St. Louis with a friend at 407 Cote Brilliante avenue. As Mrs. Busseller she will live at 1510 North Taylor avenue.

Busseller met Miss Carty for the first time nearly a year and a half ago. They had both been to Greve Ouse Lake for a day, but neither knew the other until, on their return, Busseller took the car seat. Miss Carty thought he was rather impudent when he spoke about the weather, but he was nice and good looking and she agreed that it had been a delightful day. They stopped at Delmar Gar-

HOSTESSES ON RELAY PLAN.

Missouri Fair Commissioners Discuss Distribution of Honors.

There is a probability that the Missouri World's Fair commission, at its January meeting, will decide against the plan of having a paid hostess for the state building. A plan favorably received by some of the members of the commission is to invite 30 well-known ladies from different parts of the state to act as hostesses for one week each during the fair. Each hostess to have the privilege of inviting friends to assist her. A matron and a corps of servants will be employed.

THE TOY STORE OPENS TOMORROW!

And our invitation includes EVERYBODY—young and old—rich and poor. We want you ALL to come tomorrow and feast your eyes on the Christmas things.

We want all the little boys and girls who read this to invite, on our behalf, all the other little boys and girls they know. Invite your mammas and your papas, your uncles and your aunts, and your big, grown-up sisters and brothers, for Saturday will truly be a great day at Barr's.

Toyland Will Hold Open House

Chug! chug! go the tiny automobiles. Clang! clang! go the fire engines. Toot! toot! go the trains, as they spin around their little tracks. Beautiful dolls peep at you. Pretty little doll houses invite you. Splendid horses and glittering wagons parade before you, while there are tigers, elephants, pianos, engines, boats and a thousand and one other things to interest you.

But we're not going to try to tell you about the toys. You must come and see them for yourself. You'll be repaid an hundred fold. And for all you do, don't forget the date, tomorrow, Saturday, the 21st. Hours, from 8 a. m. to 6 p. m.

ROCKEFELLERS WREST CONTROL FROM MORGAN

Forced Retirement of Morgan & Co. From the Steel Trust Bond Conversion Scheme Believed in Wall Street to Indicate This

MEANS LOSS TO LOSERS OF SURE PROFIT OF $10,700,000

First Step in Withdrawal of Firm From Domination of Corporation Seizure of Reins of Power by Oil Magnates

Special to the Post-Dispatch. NEW YORK, Nov. 20.—Prevalent report in Wall street is that J. P. Morgan & Co.'s forced retirement from the Steel trust bond conversion scheme is proof that Morgan and his friends have been swept aside and that the Rockefellerers are in control of the Steel Trust. This belief has been general for several days.

However, there are those who say Morgan has scored another coup. These give little to back their faith.

Past on the heels of the exposures last Sunday, exclusively in the Post-Dispatch and New York World, of the real operations of J. P. Morgan & Co. syndicate for the conversion of $200,000,000 of preferred stock into 5 per cent sinking fund bonds of the United States Steel Corporation and exclusive announcement of threatened suits against J. P. Morgan & Co., to compel resignation to the steel corporation of the directors, came the official statement that the contract between the steel corporation and Morgan & Co. had been cancelled.

The statement says frankly that the directors of the steel corporation called upon J. P. Morgan & Co. to agree to a cancellation of the contract, and that J. P. Morgan & Co. thereupon gave their consent.

What caused the directors of the Steel Corporation to take this step, in view of the fact that the contract originally executed on Oct. 1 last and that on that date they gave an extension to Morgan & Co. until July 1, 1931, is not explained in the statement. Neither is anything said as to why J. P. Morgan & Co. agreed to a cancellation of the contract.

Sure Profit of $10,700,000 in Sight

Had the Morgan syndicate been allowed to continue operation under the contract it would have made a sure profit of $10,700,000 by carrying out the conversion plan on the agreed-upon method. That powerful reinsurances actuated the Morgan syndicate in relinquishing a sure profit of $10,700,000 is certain.

One of the reports in Wall street today is that the abandonment of the contract by J. P. Morgan & Co. was the first step in the withdrawal of that firm from the active domination of the Steel Corporation and that, henceforth, the Rockefellerers would be active in the direction of its affairs.

The agreement of Morgan & Co. to a cancellation of the contract was not only due to a desire to escape threatened litigation, it was believed, but to a command from the Rockefellerers, which it is asserted now own a majority of the stock in the Steel Corporation.

Taking all things into consideration, it is the general opinion of the best authorities in Wall street that the Steel Corporation was a material winner by the cancellation of the contract, but what nobody can understand is the willingness of J. P. Morgan & Co. to surrender a contract that meant certain additional profits to the syndicate of $10,700,000.

The process by which the Morgan syndicate made these great profits was most simple, thanks to the beneficial contract made with J. P. Morgan & Co. by the finance committee of the Steel Corporation, the chairman of which is George W. Perkins, one of the partners of J. P. Morgan.

Net Profits of Syndicate Estimated at $16,000,000

The Morgan syndicate simply bought the Steel preferred stock on the market, at from 90 to 91, an overwhelming major at the latter figure; took the shares of stock up to the Hudson Trust Co., the transfer agent of the Steel Corporation, and had it exchanged for bonds. Then the bonds were sold on the exchange at 66 or 67.

For some time the difference between the stock and bonds has averaged about fifteen points. Thus it was to Morgan & Co.'s good purposes that the stock went to smash on the exchange.

The profits of the Morgan syndicate out of this wonderful contract can only be estimated. In round figures, deducting the losses, the net profits are believed to be in the neighborhood of $16,000,000.

Judge E. H. Gary, chairman of the board of directors of the United States Steel Corporation, has given out a statement in regard to the syndicate contract, saying that a further conversion of preferred stock beyond the amount of $100,000,000, already converted, would be made, and that the syndicate contract would be terminated at this figure. Already $10,388,500 worth of bonds have been issued in fulfillment of the contract. Mr. Gary's statement follows:

Gary's Statement of the Transaction

"At a meeting of the finance committee of the United States Steel Corporation it was (by unanimous vote) decided to suggest to Messrs. J. P. Morgan & Co. that the syndicate contract for the conversion of preferred stock into second mortgage 5 per cent bonds should be canceled and terminated beyond the amount of $100,000,000, which figure has very heavily benefited Messrs. J. P. Morgan & Co. immediately accorded to the request of the finance committee and no further exchange will be made for account of the syndicate beyond the amount stated.

"The matter now stands as follows: One hundred and forty-six million, three hundred and eighty-eight thousand five hundred dollars in bonds have already been issued in exchange for stock received and canceled; $2,715,500 remain to be issued in exchange for preferred stock to be converted by the syndicate to $2,715,500 at par for cash and paid for in full Oct. 1, and already issued; $17,682,500 bonds sold at par for cash upon which $5 per bond has been paid to the corporation Oct. 1, and which

WIFE DESERTER AN EMBEZZLER?

Confessed to Chief Kiehl That He Had Taken Money From Employers

Christian Meisner of Higginsville, Mo., living in St. Louis as Charles Mehring of 4013 Finney avenue, confessed to Chief Kiehl, after his arrest Friday noon, that he had embezzled $300 from the Federation of Labor at his home town, $300 from the R. P. O. E. and $600 from the Hammond Packing Co. of Kansas City, for whom he was the Higginsville representative.

Meisner as found in a folding bed in his apartments, after a young woman whom it is charged he sloped had denied his presence in the room. Acting on authority of a warrant charging the desertion of his wife and two children, detectives forced their way into the house and found him.

His effort to secure a revolver with which to resist the officers was frustrated after a fight. City Marshal Joseph Truesdale of Higginsville will take the prisoner home.

will be issued whenever the remaining 75 per cent shall be called for and paid, making the total issue of $170,000,000 outstanding.

"The balance of the $200,000,000 of bonds available for exchange for preferred stock will be held subject to the exclusive right of the corporation itself to issue with from time to time as the board of directors may see fit.

"It is not the present intention of the corporation to make any conversion of preferred stock into bonds."

GOAT FARM IN THE OZARKS Milk Free From Germs Will Be Supplied for Babies

Directors of stockholders of the National Goat Dairy Co. of St. Louis will hold their first meeting Saturday morning to elect officers and begin preparations for the establishment of an extensive goat farm to supply milk free from germs of tuberculosis.

Within three days the capital stock of the company will be increased from $200,000 to $300,000. Forty St. Louis physicians have signed a petition to increase the stock of George B. Hull, who will leave for Europe in January to buy goats. The company now has 300 goats and 4,000 acres of land in the Ozark mountains.

The incorporators were J. C. McKean, Max R. Orthwein, W. Marmaduke, St. Louis, A. B. Hull of Springfield, Mo., and B. H. Rucker of Rolla, Mo.

STRONG KIDNEYS MAKE STRONG MEN

Thousands Have Weak Kidneys and Don't Even Suspect It.

2ND LIEUT. BAILLY.

I was a constant sufferer for a number of years with back ache and frequent desire to urinate day and night and sometimes with smarting and burning sensation, but after using Dr. Kilmer's Swamp-Root, an entirely new and cheerfully recommended it to any who suffer from these common complaints.

SERGEANT PERRY.

Weak and unhealthy kidneys are responsible for more sickness and suffering than any other disease, therefore, when through neglect or other causes, kidney trouble is permitted to continue, fatal results are sure to follow.

We often see a relative, a friend or an acquaintance apparently well, but in a few days we may be

SPECIAL NOTICE—Swamp-Root has been tested in so many ways, and has proven so successful in every case, that a special arrangement has been made by which all readers of the Post-Dispatch who have not already tried it, may have a sample bottle sent absolutely free by mail. Also a book telling all about Swamp-Root, and containing many of the thousands upon thousands of testimonial letters received from men and women who owe their very lives to the wonderful curative properties of Swamp-Root. In writing to Dr. Kilmer & Co., Binghamton, N. Y., be sure and mention that you read this generous offer in the St. Louis Daily Post-Dispatch.

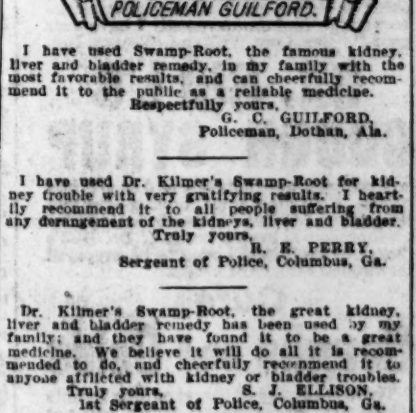

Swamp-Root is pleasant to take, and is for sale at all drug stores, in bottles of two sizes and two prices, fifty-cents and one-dollar. Don't make any mistake, but remember the name, Swamp-Root, Dr. Kilmer's Swamp-Root, and the address, Binghamton, N. Y., on every bottle.

CHIEF REYNOLDS.

About a year ago I was suffering from what I supposed was rheumatism. I became so bad that I could hardly get on my feet from a sitting position. I lost in weight from one hundred and sixty-five to one hundred and forty-five pounds. I tried different kinds of medicine but received little or no help. I had no idea my kidneys were affected, however. I thought I would try Dr. Kilmer's Swamp-Root and see what the effect would be. I took it according to the directions and in a few days I felt that it was helping me. I bought two more large bottles, and they have completely cured me.

Most sincerely yours,
WM. M. PARTCH, New Haven, Addison Co., Va.

Special Cable to the Post-Dispatch.

LONDON, Nov. 20.—George Alexander's suggestion that removing women's headgear in theaters be made compulsory has called out a singular protest from Mrs. Arthur Stannard, the novelist, better known as John Strange Winter, who pronounces such an edict impracticable, as 90 per cent of the women nowadays wear wigs.

This impeachment is angrily denied by many women, who have summoned the leading hair dressers to bear them out.

Mrs. Stannard says she wore a wig herself until she discovered a means of making her hair grow. So some people suspect she wants to advertise a new remedy for baldness. Yet, it may be only a shrewd move to touch women's pride and provoke them to take their headgear off to prove they do not wear wigs.

SAYS NATURALIZERS FORGED HIS NAME

Archibald Carr Denies Authenticity of Signatures to Papers Found in Register's Office

Archibald Carr, formerly clerk of the criminal court and circuit court for criminal causes, stated Friday that his name was forged to the naturalization papers which City Register Fitzgibbon now has in his possession.

As told exclusively in the Post-Dispatch, Mr. Fitzgibbon says he found these and other similar papers in a desk when he succeeded Henry Busch in the register's office.

Mr. Carr showed the Post-Dispatch that his autographs are noticeably different from the manner in which his name is written on the papers in Mr. Fitzgibbon's possession.

"I have not seen the papers Mr. Fitzgibbon has, but if they bear my name and the seal of the court and date during my term of office, they were stolen," said Mr. Carr.

"I was always particularly careful about naturalization papers. I remember a policeman came to me one day with a slip of paper bearing about twenty names. He told me to look over my list and if I found that these men had received naturalization papers, to issue duplicates and he would pay for them.

Kind. He said he would report me to the court, and he did report me to Judge Edmunds. The judge demanded an explanation, and I told him I would not issue the papers without proof that the original papers had been lost and that the men were still alive. I told him the men might all be dead or not entitled to papers.

"Judge Edmunds sustained my position, and there were no more such applications to me."

ARRAY OF DAMAGE SUITS.

Approach of Last Filing Day Brings Many Cases

The approach of the last filing day for the January term of circuit court has increased the number of suits filed daily. A number of personal injury suits were filed Friday.

Edward P. Hager, a switchman, asks $20,000 from the Terminal company for loss of a leg. He was knocked from the top of a freight car at the Twelfth street bridge Nov. 1.

Bel S. Ables asks the Transit company for damages for injury to his leg, thrown from a car at Olive street and Garrison avenue Oct. 8.

George Schuler's suit is for $15,000, alleging that he was internally injured in being thrown from his wagon in a collision with a street car at Ninth and Carr streets.

The American Brewing Co. have filed suit for $77.50, which they claim is the price of beer spilled in a collision between a brewery wagon and a car at Laclede and Spring avenues.

Daniel McLean has filed suit for $3000 damages against the James Black Masonry and Contracting Co. for injuries received in falling from a workman's elevator at Ninth and Carr streets. He alleges the engineer started the elevator without giving the signal.

Corinna Howard seeks $5000 from the Abbott-Gamble Contracting Co. for the death of her husband, Harry Howard, killed in the cave-in of a trench on Olive avenue, Sept. 11.

Matthew Donnelly seeks $4000 from the Suburban Railroad for injuries received in being thrown from a car at Twentieth and Wash streets.

Abraham J. Myers sues the Baltimore & Ohio Railroad in the local courts for $4000, the value of a pottery plant and his services was destroyed at Shoola, Ind., June 28, 1900, by sparks from a locomotive.

ST. LOUIS SENDS A "STRONG MAN" TO EASTERN MATCH

Carl Victor, the St. Louis "strong man," will represent this city in the international strength contest to be held Dec. 28 at Madison Square Garden, New York.

The selection of a St. Louis representative was made last night in a trial held at the Holland building. George Milbauer of the M. A. C. also tried for the honor, but did not fill the bill in strength.

The Madison Square contest will be judged on conformation as well as strength. Victor was used as a model for the Fair sculptors, and so fills the bill in this respect.

Victor's measurements are almost perfect.

FELL ON A RED HOT STOVE.

Mrs. Nancy Durbin Severely Injured in Her Street Car Home

Mrs. Nancy Durbin, who lives with her husband in an abandoned street car at Kingsbury place and De Baliviere avenue, fell upon a red-hot stove while cooking breakfast Friday morning, and was severely burned. She is at the City Hospital in a critical condition.

FUNERAL OF HERMAN BERNACH

The funeral of Herman Bernach, who was killed last Thursday at Elcano, Tex., was held this afternoon at 1:30 at the family residence, 238 Allen avenue.

Bernach was a millwright and had been at work in the mills situated at Elcano since July. Thursday he was sent to repair some damages that the mill machinery had sustained. On his way to work he had to pass over some rails.

He tried to pass through the opening which had been made at ten crossing, but before he could get through the cars were pushed together and he was crushed between them dying instantly.

Mr. Bernach leaves a widow and one daughter, Mrs. E. A. Vought. He was born in Germany 29 years ago, and was in the States for 35 years. He will be buried at St. Marcus cemetery.

Lack of Hat Gets Him in Trouble

The fact that he was without a hat got Jacob Stephens of 2023 North Tenth street into the trouble which confines him today. Jacob is only 17 years old. He was arrested near Tenth and Pine streets Thursday evening by two policemen, who suspected him of being a highwayman.

The only ground for their suspicion was the rumor that a highwayman had robbed a man at Eighth and Market streets earlier in the evening and had lost his hat in the struggle.

Falling Walls Buried Firemen

BUTLER, Pa., Nov. 20.—The Park Theater building, the Central Hotel, the Butler business college and several adjoining buildings were destroyed by fire early today. Loss was $50,000.

A number of firemen under a mass of brick and burning timber and Chief Jacob Burckholder, Frank Zeigler, Charles Douglas and Albert Walters were seriously injured.

Cologne Causes Arrest

The fragrance of water lilies, clinging to their coats with prevailing breeze, caused the arrest of James Smith of 1415 Pain street and John Pottsfeld, 430 North Thirteenth street, upon the charge of having stolen nine bottles of perfume consigned to the Meyer Bros. Drug Co. in care of the Columbia Transfer Co. for which they are drivers. In their pockets were found some of the bottles missing.

Most Rapid Transit Exhibit

The Continental Gesellschaft Fuer Elektrische Unternehmungen of Nuremberg, Germany, has notified the World's Fair management that it will exhibit a model of the suspended railway service in operation between Bremen, Silberfeld and Vohwinkel, Germany. The model will show the plan of suspension over cities and rivers, switches, loops and block system.

Dr. Engelman's Funeral

The funeral of Dr. George J. Engelman, who died in New Hampshire, was held Friday morning at 10 o'clock in the Church of the Holy Communion. The interment will be in Bellefontaine cemetery. Many friends attended the services.

Big Men of Brawn and Muscle

Big healthy men fancy that because of their great strength they are proof against diseases that play havoc with their less sturdy brothers. This is an error.

Big muscles require a big supply of blood. Without it they quickly waste away.

Any disease which attacks the mucous membranes causes the arteries to contract and so shuts off the blood.

Catarh does this.

For this reason strong men yield to this disease quite as quickly as do those of a fragile build and strength. Nearly every man as well as every woman suffers with catarh at some time or other. Hundreds of thousands of lives are ruined by it.

The ordinary cold is the commonest form of catarh. A cold neglected quickly develops into catarh of the throat; then of the bronchial tubes, and finally consumption.

Others suffer from catarh of the stomach or of the intestines; or of the kidneys, liver or bladder. These diseases cause intense pain, render the victim incapable of attending to his or her business, and if allowed to continue unchecked, will cause a lingering death.

Catarh is a disease of the mucous membranes, the mucous cells, nerve centers and of the blood.

Modern science has established the fact that the only way to cure it is by getting behind the poisonous germs and driving them out—by going to the seat of the trouble through the blood—and not by local treatment that drives them all the deeper and so poisons the entire system.

Rexall Mucu-Tone

is the new cure for catarh. It works through the blood. Taken up by the arteries it is carried to the interior walls of the mucous membranes—the parts attacked by catarh.

Here the millions of tiny cells which have become packed with and paralyzed by the poisoned secretions, are set throbbing and pulsating. As a result of these sudden expansions and contractions the poisonous matter is quickly expelled.

At once the mucous cells take up their duties, the congestion ceases, the inflammation subsides. The unhealthy discharge is stopped, and sustained and strengthened by the tonic properties of the remedy, the sufferer finds himself on the road to robust health.

We guarantee Rexall Mucu-Tone to cure (not only relieve, but cure) catarh in every form, whether of the head, throat, stomach, kidneys, bladder or pelvic organs. Anyone who after a fair trial says he or she has not been fully cured can have his or her money back without question.

Price 25 cents. Sold only at our store or by mail.

ment to be such, and he would readily listen to any grievance looking to the exposure of an official who was not conducting himself within the lines of dignified and proper conduct.

Some reference was made to the rejection of two or three applicants for St. Louis federal positions on the ground that their moral habits did not measure up to the required standards and they said he would in like manner make short work of Baumhoff, though they urged that Mr. Roosevelt would not recognize them or other politicians, and so they had come to secure my services.

Some documents bearing on the postmaster's attitude toward certain employees were presented, and among them was the complaint of the young woman to whom I have just alluded.

When the conversation had ended I said to the gentleman that I desired to have a private interview with the young woman, and thereupon they left, but, as I learned afterwards, came to her at the corner.

When they departed I asked Miss — why she had not come by herself, and reminded her that the circumstances of her visit proved somewhat embarrassing to me and made my position a most delicate one. I asked her about the statement she was alleged to have made, why she made it and what influences prompted her to join in a movement that these politicians seemingly had created.

PUNY CHILDREN.

Parents Should Know How to Keep Children Well—Expert Advice by St. Louis Druggists.

"We do not wish to blame any of our friends for that which they cannot help, but sometimes when we see delicate and puny children, we cannot help feeling that parents are neglectful," said Mr. Wolff of the Wolff-Wilson Drug Co. during a recent interview.

"If we could only make all fathers and mothers in St. Louis regard what we say, especially if their little ones are delicate, how glad they would be afterward. They can make their children strong and well. They can lay a foundation stone in their little lives that will give them joy and happiness in years to come and they will become strong and hearty men and women, if they will only believe what we say about Vinol and follow our advice."

Remember Vinol contains all the active curative principles taken directly from fresh cod's livers without grease or oil, and its taste is delicious, and that is what gives it such power to assist the stomach of the little child to properly assimilate the food which they eat. It is the means by which rich, red blood is made; strong bone structure built; hard, firm, flesh tissue is created, and healthy, sound nerves maintained.

Mrs. Jennie Perce, 169 Newman street, Mansfield, O., says:
"I wish to add a few words of praise for Vinol. My little boy was very much run down, so much so that he had to leave school. He really was a mere shadow. I decided to give him Vinol, and he is rapidly gaining flesh. I wish to recommend Vinol to every mother who has puny, ailing children."

Not only for children but for adults do we recommend Vinol as the greatest strength creator and builder of health, without reservation and stand prepared to refund all money to those who do not find absolute satisfaction in its use Wolff-Wilson Drug Co.

was forced to make the statement and charge Mr. Baumhoff as she had done, that her father was intimately associated with Mr. —, who had come with her to my house, and that she, being almost the only support of her mother, felt obligated under the circumstances.

The answer satisfied me that something was wrong somewhere, and the apparent reluctance of the men to leave the young woman alone with me was also of significance.

The following morning I sent a note to the two gentlemen to the effect that I must decline to represent their interests in any way.

I felt, as I had told them at the start, it would be the part of indiscretion for a clergyman to pursue a matter of this sort, but their insistence was such that I promised to give it my most careful attention.

I then sent for Postmaster Baumhoff to come to my house and he did so, in company with his private secretary.

After they had been seated I turned to Mr. Baumhoff and said: "I have been asked to look into some very serious charges against you—charges which reflect on your reputation and are of a most startling nature."

"What are they, Dr. Boyd?" asked Mr. Baumhoff, apparently much surprised himself.

I related them to him and said: "If what is said against you is true in whole, or even in part, I would advise you, Mr. Baumhoff, to go straightway to your office and write out your resignation."

"The charges are bound to become public and if they are in the slightest degree true there is only one course for you to pursue and that is as I have said, to resign at once."

Holding up his hand, the postmaster said: "I swear there is not a word of truth in those charges and I can completely establish my innocence."

I turned to his private secretary and said: "Do you know anything of this matter?" He responded that he did not.

"Then, Mr. Baumhoff," I said, "if they are based on falsehood I should fight the matter to the bitter end and immediately go to see the Washington authorities before even the charges can reach them and demand an investigation."

The next day Mr. Baumhoff left for Washington, where he saw Postmaster General Payne.

Mr. Payne laughed at the postmaster, ridiculed his request for an inquiry and dismissed the subject by remarking that it was always the case when an official sought reappointment that individuals, finding no chance to attack the administration of his office, would make malicious attacks upon him and finding no other reason would attempt to besmirch his character.

Mr. Baumhoff wished to see the President.

No, said Payne: "You go back and attend to the affairs of your postoffice and if anything comes up I will let you know."

THE INVESTIGATION BEGINS.
Nothing further arose until the following November, or thereabouts, when three postoffice inspectors, one from Cincinnati, the other from Chicago and a third from Philadelphia came to St. Louis, registered at the Planters' hotel and there secretly began the taking of testimony on affidavits which had been sent to Washington by the very men who had called to see me.

These inspectors dealt directly with the very persons who had selfish ends to accomplish, namely that of turning the postoffice into a political machine, if they could defeat Baumhoff for reappointment; and the employees who furnished the evidence were escorted to the hotel by the enemies of the postmaster.

For eight days the inquiry went on at the hotel behind closed doors. At the end of this star chamber investigation the inspectors called on Postmaster Baumhoff, who had not till then been apprised of their presence in the city, and asked him if he would furnish them quarters where they might pursue the investigation.

Up to that moment only those employees who had grievances against the postmaster were called upon to testify. Now they were called as if the investigation were just beginning, and every woman employee and nearly all the male clerks in the office were also called before the inquisitorial body.

Mr. Baumhoff readily complied with their request, saying: "Gentlemen, you have the freedom of my office; you may call upon any employee for any information you desire, and there is not one request I have to make, and it is this: If there are any charges against me I want you to give me an opportunity to reply to them."

About this time I called on Mr. Baumhoff and remarked about the star chamber proceedings that had been going on at the Planters' Hotel.

He took me into his private office, where two of the inspectors—the third was absent—were sitting, and introduced me to them. I sat down, and we fell into a discussion of the case.

As I drew attention to the facts as I knew them and referred to the visit of Miss — at my house and her declaration that she had been practically forced to make the statement against Mr. Baumhoff, one of the inspectors drew from a package of papers what purported to be her affidavit, and said: "I am happy to tell you, Dr. Boyd, that Miss — has sworn to the very same statements you have made."

I was with the inspectors about two hours. They left me under the impression that the charges against Mr. Baumhoff amounted to nothing and that the investigation would fully vindicate him, personally and officially and otherwise of any unwelcome conduct.

Leaving them, I remarked to Mr. Baumhoff that I thought the inspectors were nice gentlemen, inclined to be fair, and I saw no reason for him to worry.

MAKES A GENERAL DENIAL.
After the inspectors had finished their inquiry, they handed Mr. Baumhoff a list of general charges which they had determined upon against him, and asked for his reply. As he had not been allowed to see or read any of the testimony or to cross-examine the witnesses, he could only make an emphatic general denial of the charges, which he did.

Of all the employees who had accompanied me outside of those who had conspired with the politicians to whom I have referred and two others, one of whom is employed in the railway mail service and another in the subtreasury, who uttered a single complaint about the postmaster a month or so later Mr. Baumhoff received a letter from the postmaster-general, notifying him that charges had been preferred and requesting him to come to Washington at once. Mr. Baumhoff took the first train for the capital and called on the postmaster-general.

When he asked for the report of the inspectors in his case, Mr. Payne sent for it, but answer was returned from a subordinate that it was a rule of the department that no accused person must be allowed to read the report in the case. This was the first time the postmaster had done

Mr. Baumhoff had been called before the inspectors, but they refused to let him see what he had testified, so that he might be in a position to refute their statements. He therefore merely entered a general denial.

When Mr. Payne asked him for a reply, Mr. Baumhoff declared that he considered "is un-American and undemocratic to convict a person who had no opportunity to defend himself." If he knew the nature of the testimony he was sure he could refute it.

Mr. Payne thought the matter over and had Mr. Baumhoff call again in the afternoon. When he returned Mr. Payne said: "Baumhoff, you are right. I will let you see the testimony and you may copy it all, or in part, and then make your answer."

Mr. Baumhoff agreed to have his defense before the authorities within a certain time.

Armed with the testimony of the employees he returned to St. Louis. I then learned that the affidavit of Miss —, which the inspector had told me was a contradiction of her original statement, was just the contrary, or a confirmation of the original charges she had made against Mr. Baumhoff. I could not believe that the inspectors would willfully misrepresent matters to me in that way, but I was left to make no other conclusion.

Mr. Baumhoff then set about preparing his defense and after he had gathered his evidence and put it into shape he submitted it to myself and Charles H. Nagel, the attorney. In turn, had other lawyers look it over and they pronounced it a complete and overwhelming refutation of the testimony that had been produced derogatory to his character.

Some few days later I went to Washington, where I saw President Roosevelt and explained to him the purpose of my errand. I talked at length over the whole Baumhoff matter, and I did not fail to say what I thought of inspectors employed by the United States government who would testify, as it appeared to me, pervert a plain statement of fact.

PRESIDENT CAUTIONS PAYNE.

Mr. Roosevelt dictated a note to Mr. Payne, which stated substantially why I had come to Washington and requested the Postmaster-general to give the case his thorough attention and sift the facts to the bottom.

"You and I must take up the case with great care," were the President's exact words.

In compliance with a suggestion from Mr. Payne, the President delegated Civil Service Commissioner W. D. Foulke to go over the evidence and then make a personal visit to St. Louis to ascertain the full merits of the controversy. At another time First Assistant Postmaster-General Wynne, during the course of a visit to St. Louis on other matters, investigated the case and reported that there was no testimony to support the Baumhoff charges.

When Mr. Foulke came to St. Louis he was broken in health and having suffered from the strain of overwork, needed rest and quiet.

I took lunch with him nearly every day he was here, but only once, when I made my official statement in the postoffice as to what I knew of the case, did we talk about Mr. Baumhoff or the postoffice affairs.

Mr. Foulke at times seemed very much confused about the case, but his report to the President practically cleared it by declaring the conspiracy fully proved and recommending the discharge of the conspirators whom he named. Following up this he added: There were statements of impropriety but nothing of an immoral nature was shown, and nothing tending toward immoral action.

I do not believe anybody outside of the President and the postmaster-general has seen the full contents of Mr. Foulke's report, but I understand it is of the purport I have indicated.

Now such, incidentally, is the Baumhoff case or "scandal," as some have been pleased to term it.

The President, the postmaster-general and other officials of the department invariably and repeatedly expressed their belief in Mr. Baumhoff's innocence.

While in St. Louis Mr. Foulke told me time and again that he was convinced there was a conspiracy against the postmaster and that all of the employees who had joined in it would have to go.

Shortly after he made his report six employees were suspended, and now they have been permanently dismissed on an order from Mr. Payne, which states explicitly that they had helped to promote the conspiracy.

But from the time this ugly mess was inaugurated what has been going on? The two congressmen from St. Louis, the only Republican representatives we have, while professing friendship for the postmaster, were secretly endeavoring to get his official scalp. Bartholdt laid covetous eyes on the postoffice, believing that with its political plums at his disposal he could, in a measure, reward his political henchmen.

Ex-Congressman Joy, professing also to be a friend, was persistently at work to secure the removal of Baumhoff in order that he himself might become postmaster.

And what is the result? Having its birth in nasty, mean, low-down politics, the case has ended in nasty, mean, low-down politics.

If the employees were in the wrong, and the authorities say they were, then Mr. Baumhoff was vindicated, and he should have been retained. That was the only logical course.

But politics, politics, has been the pivot of the whole outrageous affair.

The head of the nation has surrendered to the influence of the politicians.

At the behest of the Secretary of the Interior and Charles Nagel, who recommended Baumhoff for reappointment—he has been selected as Mr. Baumhoff's successor—an estimable gentleman, but in politics a nonentity, a man who could not carry his own precinct in an election, and who has on more than one occasion fought the regular party organization in his ward.

The end, as I have said, is politics pure and simple, but I do not think the end is yet. It seems as if this sudden change on the part of the Secretary of the Interior and Mr. Nagel, to whom the President referred the appointment of a postmaster, indicates another attempt to create, through the patronage of the postoffice, a new political machine, the object of which is not so much to secure federal patronage as to secure a certain delegation from Missouri to the Republican national convention.

Mr. Baumhoff, who I am convinced has been most outrageously treated, has not been properly vindicated. It is true the President or the authorities have not found him guilty, but the people, in view of the selection of another man to take his place, believe that he is just the same. The publication of all the facts will make a very interesting story, and the story shall be given to the public.

After Dr. Boyd had made the foregoing statement he was asked if the young woman who had gone to see him regarding her charge against the postmaster had made a written denial of her original charges.

"I understand that she has," he replied.

"Was the first statement in her own handwriting?"

"That I cannot say."

"You are sure that she retraced all of her original charges?"

"I am sure of it."

"Have you seen her since the occasion of her visit to your house?"

"I have not."

"Is she still a member of your church?"

"I do not know; she may be; I have so many members that I cannot remember them all."

"You say her reputation was excellent?"

"I always considered her a most estimable young woman until she admitted to me her part in this affair."

"Have you ever talked with Miss Dreyer or any of the other women whose names are involved in the case?"

"I have not."

"Doctor, were you paid a fee by Mr. Baumhoff?"

"I did not receive a cent for my services. In fact," he said laughingly, "I defrayed my own expenses, and am out on it if anything. I went into the case because I always sympathize and take up for the under dog."

"I was unwilling to make a statement of the case in behalf of Mr. Baumhoff before now," concluded Dr. Boyd, "because I had been informed from Washington that any attempt to go into the newspapers or the courts would prejudice the case in the eyes of the postmaster's superiors."

"I have not."

PRESIDENT WINS POINT FOR WOOD

Induces Senate Committee to Reverse Decision to Probe Charges in Public

SENATOR SCOTT PROTESTS

Hanna Bitterly Arraigns Roosevelt's Military Protege and Urges His Nomination Be Rejected

Special to the Post-Dispatch. Nov. 20.—President Roosevelt has succeeded in preventing the holding of public hearings of the charges against his friend and protege, Gen. Leonard Wood, whom he has appointed a major-general, and whose confirmation by the Senate is being opposed.

The military affairs committee of the Senate, at the direct request of the President, reversed its position and began the hearings in secret.

It had been announced that the hearings would be public. The President asked the Republicans on the committee and some of the Democrats to hold the hearings behind closed doors.

At the suggestion of Senator Proctor, acting chairman of the committee, Clerk Thompson had made elaborate preparations for an open hearing, even going to the trouble and expense of securing ample accommodations for the newspaper men who were to report the proceedings.

Everybody in the committee room at the appointment time, except the few senators who had been asked to do the President's bidding, had come under the belief that Senator Proctor spoke with authority; when, last week he promised Senators Teller and Hanna that the Wood charges would not be probed in secret.

Hanna and Teller entered the committee room before Senator Proctor appeared. Scarcely had Senator Proctor called the meeting to order and stated its object to be to listen to protests from Senators Hanna and Teller against the confirmation of Gen. Wood, before Senator Quarles raised the point that the committee was about to perform a service that was intended to aid the work of the Senate when in executive session; therefore, he thought it might not be proper if "outsiders" were allowed to witness the proceedings.

Senator Proctor promptly supported Senator Quarles, contending that there was neither cause nor precedent for an open hearing.

Senator Scott took the ground that neither the case of Gen. Wood could be harmed if the general had a good case, nor the dignity of the Senate be offended by the fullest and freest publicity possible being given to the proceedings.

"Besides," said Senator Scott, "who doubts that the papers will have a full account of our proceedings, even if we do put the report out and shut the doors?"

"That depends on the integrity of the senators," hotly retorted Senator Cockrell of Missouri, who then suggested that with the possible exception of the case of former Governor General Harrison, no other member of the committee had ever conducted an open investigation into the fitness of an army officer named for promotion by the President.

When the committee had locked its doors, Senators Hanna and Teller began their argument against Gen. Wood's further promotion at this time.

It is known that Senator Hanna bitterly attacked Wood, alleging that he had used his influence as governor to control the acts of the courts trying Estes G. Rathbone.

TURF TALK

J. M. Murphy of Buck Massie and Souffle fame is in the city for a short stay. Mr. Murphy made book in Chicago all summer, with more or less success, and will spend the winter months in New Orleans. Mr. Murphy is a former resident of St. Louis. Five or six years ago he had the best stable in the West.

Buck Massie was the best horse he ever owned. Mr. Murphy owned the great son of Hanover when assigned last him by a horse for the St. Louis tracks in 1890. Buck Massie is now in the stud, and has sired a number of good ones, including the crack 3-year-old, Henry McDaniel. R. McLeod Potter, a New York millionaire, who has a breeding establishment in New York, now owns Buck Massie. Mr. Murphy won every Oaks in the West with Souffle in her 2-year-old form. Souffle is now a member of the matron band at William C. Whitney's Kentucky stock farm.

"Virginia" Johnny Carroll was mixing with the boys on Eighth street Thursday after a short stay in Latonia. Carroll spent last winter at Hot Springs and is undoubtedly just where to spend the coming winter.

Moss Goldblatt has signed Jockey Willie Watson for the New Orleans meeting. Watson rode for Mark Gumpert and John W. Powers on the St. Louis tracks in 1898 and 1899, and is a good race rider. He is now with Goldblatt, who is training him to win some stakes at New Orleans with his crack 3-year-old, Rainland. Watson rode this colt to victory at Latonia the other day. Goldblatt had Rainland at Kilmock last year, and the colt ran several creditable races during the early part of the Delmar fair meeting. It was very near an even thing between Rainland and Forehand, George Bennett's crack Handicap colt. The pair had several close finishes.

Congressman Timothy D. Sullivan and State Senator Patrick H. McCarren are the principal owners of the Jamaica racetrack. Sullivan is the real man in Tammany Hall. Although Charles F. Murphy is the ostensible owner, it is really Sullivan, who is the "big man" of Dry Dock Sullivan, as the congressman is known to his intimates, is generally regarded as the real power behind the throne. Sullivan has been dabbling with the turf for many years. He has trained his horses this year. Zimmerman had charge of Jockey Puller, who rode for Sullivan all season. McCarren is the new Democratic leader of Brooklyn, of King's County. He has succeeded in defeating Hugh McLaughlin, who was elected "stand for" the nomination of George McClellan, the new mayor of Greater New York has McCarren has been on the turf more extensively than even Sullivan. He is a brother of the St. Louis tracks.

Ed Crow departed for San Francisco Thursday. He goes West to act as cashier for Phil Bellinger. Crow distinguished himself in the capacity of master of ceremonies the night that Police Capt. Mike Malley was elected to the office of chief by the residents of his old district in North St. Louis. Crow is a well-known character on the local racetracks.

The announcement that Delmar would open ahead of the Fair Grounds next spring was well received by local patrons of the racetrack. Delmar is the hottest place outside of hades during the months of July and August. When the time comes for allot dates for the St. Louis Western Jockey Club should see to it that the Fair Grounds gets the hot weather season, while it would be well to divide up the Delmar season between spring and fall.

"Kid" Weller is out with a statement that he will make a $50,000 future book on the American Derby of 1904. A future book on the $50,000 World's Fair handicap, to be run at the Fair Grounds next season, ought to prove a big thing. Every good horse in this country is eligible to start in the World's Fair handicap. The stake is to be renewed on Jan. 1 and a future book could hardly be made on the result until the weights were announced.

FILIPINO WIFE CAN'T PROTEST
Distance Prevents Her From Defending Herself Against Lieutenant's Suit for Annulment of Marriage

Special to the Post-Dispatch. LEAVENWORTH, Kan., Nov. 20.—The suit of First-Lieut. Sidney H. Burbank, 34th Infantry, against Mrs. Concepcion Aquino, a Filipino woman, to set aside an alleged marriage, will come up in the United States District Court here today. So far the woman has not been heard from. It would require another month for her to get to this city, as the case is in the case have to cross the Pacific twice.

Lieut. Burbank was engaged to marry Miss Stone, daughter of Sen. Senator Stone of Kansas. The engagement was announced last summer. The woman was sent to the war department, which called upon Burbank for explanation, and threatened him with court martial if he married again while in the service.

BOXING NOTES

There is no noise yet at the West End Club. Promoter Haughton is resting from his labors, after the recent wrestling match.

"I'm sorry I mixed up with wrestling," said Haughton, "it lowers the tone of my other amusements."

And now the question is, how many times per minute will Conney, Kelley, Joe Vanger in the M. A. C. bout Saturday night?

The Thursday M. A. C. boxing contest between Tommy Sullivan and a pupil sent one of heroes through the indices of the audience. It was a real hard, ladylike exhibition.

John Wille is the latest aspirant for the swif of Jack Root. While announcing that he would like to engage Root in a six-round bout before one of the Chicago clubs.

Jack Cordell, the man who got a decision over Aurelia Herrera in Oakland, Cal., Tuesday night, is a graduate of the amateur ranks and against the Mexican made his first professional battle.

Tony Caponi, the Chicago Italian fighter, is matched to box Charley McKeever in Minneapolis inside of two weeks. He also was a match with "Rube" Ferra in St. Paul, but the date for that meeting is not set.

Tommy Mowatt is working hard for his engagement in New Orleans with "K. D. Broad. If he wins he is to get a meeting there with Jack McCallahan or some other good man among the feather weights.

Efforts that have been made to bring Hugh Murphy, the New England feather weight, and Benny Yarger together in a bout in Indianapolis and Peoria, although his opponents have not yet been selected.

Buddy Ryan now says that he is willing to take a purse that is offered by the Chicago Athletic Association for a meeting with Jack O'Keefe at 125 pounds and box a week from Saturday night.

Hughes McPadden, the Brooklyn featherweight, who made a number of creditable fights in the West a year ago, is coming West again, and will be prepared to meet anyone in his class. He is regarded as one of the best boys that ever came out of the East.

It is said negotiations are now pending for bringing Billy Sift and "Diamond" Torney together in a return engagement before the Chicago Athletic Association. Sift is believed he can do better against the stock yards giant if he sets him away from his own stalling ground.

BECAUSE HE TALKED TOO MUCH

German Nobleman, Who Is in St. Louis, May Lose an Ancestral Fortune

Because he talked too much a nobleman who is in St. Louis may lose a $300,000 ancestral estate in Germany.

By the strange provisions of the will of his mother he was required to serve ten years in an official capacity to demonstrate his fitness for inheriting the fortune and his capacity for handling it. A politician of national reputation and with abundant influence became interested in him and placed him in several positions where he could comply with the conditions of the will.

Through the exertions of the politician, President McKinley was induced to bring the powers of the executive office to bear in the interest of the nobleman. But his tongue undid all the work that had been done for him.

He now has less than a year in which to meet the conditions of the will and he has come to St. Louis filled with repentance to retrieve himself.

REGAL MAIL ORDER DEPT.

Over 275,000 people buy Regal shoes by mail. The orders come from every state, and from nearly every country in the world. And yet there are shoe stores everywhere.

Why do these people send to us? Simply and solely for the one great reason that always produces and holds trade—we give them more for their money than they can get anywhere else—more style, more comfort, more wear.

At first they must take our word for it. They must buy in the dark—"sight unseen." You need not do that if you are near a Regal store—just come in and see for yourself. Open the "Window of the Sole" and see the honest, oak-tanned leather—you can't see the sole leather in any other shoe—the others are all black and shiny with paint, and 90 per cent. of all paint-bottom shoes have hemlock soles.

Come and see the buzz saw rip up our shoes and others, and decide for yourself.

FOOTBALL

RICKER PLAYS OR NO GAME

Todd Issues Ultimatum in Dispute Over His Presence in Thanks-giving Battle

Ricker, the former high school football player, now with the C. B. C. squad, will play with the purple and gold eleven in the Thanksgiving Day game against the St. Louis Varsity team.

"Either Ricker will be in our line-up or there will be no game," said Coach Todd last night. "The A. A. U. has no jurisdiction in this case and if it had it has issued no ultimatum against him. As it stands now Ricker has not even been protested on the grounds of his alleged professionalism."

"Should St. Louis University ask his disqualification it would have no ground for its position, as not a thing official has been done in Ricker's case."

"Should the local A. A. U. see fit to pass adversely upon his case before Thanksgiving Day, my position would still be the same—Ricker must play. Until the National A. A. U. says that he cannot play the case will not have been finally decided. Even then I am not sure that its ruling is binding. The Eastern A. A. U. is a college football authority alone, and I think should do the same here."

"As for Ricker, before he entered college he was compelled to enter for a year. He will not leave after the football season, and in all probability will be seen with the C. B. C. eleven next year."

"Ricker may be very necessary in that Thanksgiving Day game. Partly, one of my good jacks and ground gainers, is in bed. I will be very short handed without Ricker in the Thanksgiving Day game. This is not my sole reason for insisting upon playing Ricker, however."

"Whatever happens, I am as certain of winning the Thanksgiving Day game from St. Louis U. as I am of anything in this world. My team is going nicely now, and works like a well oiled machine. With the kicking advantage which Ricker's presence on the team gives, the issue can hardly be in doubt. The St. Louis University eleven will have to improve miraculously to win."

Saturday's game with the Alumni eleven is expected to be played for the regular eleven, but mistakes may occur. If the alumni have been working for a month, as advertised, and the lineup includes Jackson, McGraw, Hild and others stars of bygone battles, the youngsters may have more trouble than they expect."

Todd's eleven is fast and accurate right now and fairly outplays St. Louis U. in the details of the game. Whether weight will overcome St. Louis U. in the Thanksgiving Day game is the only doubt.

Thanksgiving Contests in East Are Unimportant—Yale Should Win Tomorrow

Saturday's football games practically end the football season in the East. Pennsylvania and Cornell will play the only Thanksgiving day game in the East of any consequence whatever, and that is a third year engagement, as eastern eleven go this year.

The last night of the year among the major eleven will be that between Harvard and Yale, and from indications that still hardly be a battle. Yale, smashed and bruised by the Princeton contest, is sufficiently recovered according to reports to put practically its best team in the field. Harvard will probably be out of the lineup, but otherwise the first team men will be on straight through.

Harvard, with an indifferent record behind it, with a captain that is at outs with his coaches, and coaches that seem divided against themselves in opinions, has little chance to win. That two unimportant colleges could in one season defeat an eleven of the class Harvard's should be sufficient to explain the weakness of the Crimson eleven.

This is the first time since football became a science that a team like Harvard or Yale has suffered humiliation at the hands of minor eleven, and Marshall and his Harvard team must feel the ignominy deeply.

If Harvard should do anything at all to Yale tomorrow, it would surprise and shock the football world much more than did the result of the Princeton-Yale contest. The prevailing opinion in the East is that Harvard has not a chance to win. Games in the West for Saturday are likewise unimportant, with two exceptions. Iowa and Illinois play at Iowa City and Northwestern and Wisconsin meet at Evanston.

It may prove fortunate for Washington that Iowa has the Illinois game scheduled so late. A few hard knocks might keep the Iowa regulars back a bit and give Washington a chance in the game Thanksgiving Day.

Illinois is expected to beat Iowa hands down, though Woodruff's eleven has been going back steadily. Wisconsin and Northwestern should have a pretty battle.

BILLIARDS

THREE HARVARD PLAYERS WHO ARE EXPECTED TO WORRY YALE TOMORROW

ST. LOUIS AFTER PREMIER TEAMS

Hedges and Robison Here to Scheme Out Winning Teams

"World's Fair baseball for the World's Fair city" is the slogan now at both the St. Louis baseball camps.

President Frank de Haas Robison, Stanley Robison and P. J. Donovan, manager of last year's Cardinals, are now in the city laying plans to be put in force following the National League meeting in New York, Dec. 8.

Secretary R. L. Hedges and Assistant Secretary Mercer of the Browns are also in the city laying plans for the unvarying ball player who may be found without strings on him.

Both club owners report men being canvassed for, but all are under cover. Baseball players are so shy these days that they have to be stalked, like the tender and succulent doe.

Mr. Robison hints at an infidel and pitcher, and Mr. Hedges is almost satisfied to stand pat, though he is angling for another infidel.

Most critics seem to think that Columbus did not take hold of the business end of the poker when it traded Harry Gieson to Alcazar for Martin, Friel and Boycock.

Interviewed separately regarding baseball here for next year, the American and National league responses were remarkably unanimous.

"What sort of a team do you really think you will have next year, Mr. Hedges?" (Also Mr. Robison.)

"I look to have a club that will be a championship factually in the rear," said Mr. Robison. "The reply is, 'You look for it—what signs do you see, Sister Anne?'"

"Do you see anything else?" "I see some dust on the misty horizon of 1937."

"And what would you guess this might be?" "It seems to me it's a horde of World's Fair visitors hurrying with six-bit and 50-cent pieces to the ball park box offices."

"But to get them you will have to have a good team."

"We will have it—we can't afford to have a poor one next year. Can't afford to have a poor team."

What the public has appreciated for a long time the management has found out. There is a word of wisdom at last. Can't afford to have a poor team."

As to the details of the construction of the championship clubs, the National League does not care to give out details. The inference is that the Messrs. Robison, however, passed a cheerful night, and assured the Post-Dispatch that he would have some useful information to give out after Dec. 8. Positively not before.

The inference is that the Messrs. Robison have a few questions to ask of the National League, and it may be that the fact that the World's Fair will be held here next year will be held up as a reason why good players should be placed at the disposal of the St. Louis club by the other National League teams.

The case of Donovan and the management for next year has been decided. The officers of the company, Donovan and Secretary Muckenfuss, have a conference yesterday, but nothing for publication was given out.

Mr. Hedges says his team will be a strong one. With a new infield, a good pitching department and a fair outfield should at least finish better than it did last season.

"KID" NEVER SAW MISSOURI
Ambitious Youth Takes Rudolph's Name, but Fails to Show Boston Officers That He Is Bandit.

"Bill" Rudolph has not been captured again. For a few brief moments Thursday night there was a vivid report that the Union gang robber, the murderer of Detective Schumacher, and the man whose escape from the St. Louis jail was the most daring ever undertaken, was in the hands of the Boston police. But the report exploded of its own accord, and "Bill" Rudolph re-emerged into a harmless thief from Lewiston, Me.

Boston policemen arrested two men in a pawnshop, where they were trying to sell stolen diamonds. One man said he was George Elliott of Portsmouth; the other said: "I am the Missouri Kid." Then he began a narrative of a bloody trail that extended from Denver, through St. Louis, to Boston.

The arresting officers thought the "Missouri Kid" was going to be Rudolph; but the men, at headquarters, laughed at them and at the desperado whom they had captured. They continued to laugh until the "Missouri Kid" became insulted and admitted that he was merely Charles Adams from way up in Maine. He had never been Missouri except on the map.

The St. Louis police refused to become excited over the reported capture of Rudolph. They argued that an obituary notice would have accompanied the news of the capture of the real Bill; and besides they had never heard of Rudolph calling himself the "Missouri Kid."

"The kid is merely kidding," said the humorist of the chief's office when he heard of it.

BLEES SHOULD CRUSH MANUAL

Score Should Not Be Less Than 40 to 0 If "Dope" Counts

More as a matter of form than for any other reason, the Blee Military Academy team and the Manual Training School eleven will play tomorrow at Pastime Park.

Nominally the intercollegiate championship depends upon the result of the contest, but as this is a foregone conclusion, the contest might as well be left unplayed.

Blee has defeated both Bums and High School, which eleven in turn have trounced Manual badly. No less than 40 to 0 should be the score against Manual on "dope."

Followers of intercollegiate league fortunes will, however, be given a chance to see the Blee eleven in action. Blee has one of the strongest teams in its class yet organized. It is fast and aggressive and its rather easy defeat of Smith tells the story.

Manual has been barely kept alive since its game with Smith Academy, but says it expects to put up a good front.

St. Louis University failed to secure a date for Saturday to replace that called off by the Kentucky University. McKendree's Lebon team did not care to risk its laurels again with Varsity players. An eleven will have to step up from the St. Louis University Alumni to give the Varsity a practice game.

The West Ends and the East St. Louis High School Alumni eleven will play a game Saturday afternoon at East St. Louis.

IOWA FEELS REASONABLY SURE OF BEATING W. U.

IOWA CITY, Ia., Nov. 20.—The last hard practice before the Illinois game was held yesterday afternoon on Iowa field. The men did excellent work on both offense and defense.

In the games of the past two weeks however, there has been a wide difference from the form shown in practice. The variety did raised work in the Simpson game two weeks ago, and in the Missouri game last Saturday the playing of the team was very poor indeed. This discrepancy between practice and games is disappointing to the coach.

The team will be given light practice Friday evening on Iowa field, and on Saturday the Illinois game will be played. The Washington game on Thanksgiving Day will have to be trained for, but it is not the hard proposition that Illinois is.

The West Ends of St. Louis and the East St. Louis Alumni football teams will play at Athletic Park Saturday afternoon.

CINCINNATI ALSO A LIGHT ELEVEN

Team Is Fast Like Washington's and Tomorrow's Game Should Be Good One

Coach Boynton of Washington tried out his men at scrimmage practice today as a final preparation for Saturday's game with the University of Cincinnati eleven.

This contest will be the last but one for the Washington team, and is the only game of consequence in the city, Saturday. The Cincinnati men will arrive here tonight. From advance notices the eleven appears about the same caliber as Washington's team, and both Boynton and Smith expect a warm engagement.

The game will show whether Washington has a chance to win from or score against Iowa Saturday.

Boynton has been perfecting the aggressive work of the eleven. So far Washington has been able to penetrate the line of but two teams—Rose Polytechnic and Shurtleff College, both weak. If it can not develop some means of opening holes for chances against Iowa are slim indeed. Tolson's hurdling has been the one feature of Washington's line gaining. Tolson is human and can only do so much. The team can not expect to rely solely on him and end runs.

Coach Chase's Cincinnati eleven is reported light and fast. If so two eleven of him lighted and fast. It is believed that with equal weight Washington can handle anything in this part of the country.

Stutts was out of the fray yesterday, but will be in the game Saturday in all probability.

MISS ROOSEVELT SNUBBED HARRY LEHR

Darling of the New York "400"
Turned Red as a Tomato When President's Daughter Ignored Him at the Horse Show

Special to the Post-Dispatch.

NEW YORK, Nov. 20.—Harry Lehr, the darling of the "400," the Baltimore wine drummer who came to New York a few years ago to earn a few thousand a year and wormed himself into the leadership of the rich set by his undeniably clever female impersonations and captured one of its wealthy widows with money to burn, as his bride; who is reported to wear pink pajamas and a rose in his hair and to do other things that indicate his recklessness of what those outside his own charmed circle might think this arbiter of fashion was vanquished yesterday afternoon at the horse show by Miss Alice Roosevelt, daughter of the President of the United States, and humiliated before the community.

When she finished with him, he was as red as a tomato with blushes that were never seen on his face before and looked like he wished he had never heard of the horse show.

Miss Roosevelt cut him.

When the charming Henry, whose blue eyes were being much admired to his great delight, ambled along the promenade, he espied Miss Roosevelt in a box.

With uplifted hat, extended hand and smiling face he rushed towards the box.

Alas! Miss Roosevelt gazed at him as though he were one of the crowd whom she had never seen before.

Lehr paid the penalty of notoriety by having all eyes focused on him, and the situation was desperately embarrassing.

He halted, then attempted to advance again.

But Miss Roosevelt was calmly arranging her box, though she must have been conscious of the attention she was attracting. There was not an expression on her face to indicate that she knew Lehr was on earth.

Seeing that Miss Roosevelt's snub was intentional, Lehr replaced his hat and moved at a rapid pace down the promenade. A few minutes later he vanished from the scene.

Miss Roosevelt has met Lehr, but it is said she does not approve of his methods.

MADDENED BY THE PERFIDY OF MAN

Pretty Little Loretta Brown, Deserted
on Eve of Her Marriage,
Is Declared Insane

During the trial in the St. Clair County court at Belleville, which resulted in a verdict of insanity in the case of pretty Loretta Palmer Brown of East St. Louis, was unfolded a pathetic tale of a mind wrecked by two love disappointments.

A mother, three sisters, two brothers and a sister-in-law of the young woman testified that the desertion of a boy husband, five weeks after the marriage, was the first blow, necessitating her retirement to the state asylum at Anna.

Medical treatment and time proved beneficent healers, and after her discharge she placed her confidence in one who had been her truest friend. Preparations for the wedding were made, when she learned that he had a wife and 18-year-old daughter living. The shock was too great, and again reason gave way.

The most pitiful feature of the inquiry was the protestations of Mrs. Brown that she still loved the man who had deceived her, and her dearest desire was to find him. This was regarded as a symptom of mental debility.

During the trial, before a medical commission, Mrs. Brown listened to the testimony with a dignified silence that baffled the physicians. No signs of mental weakness lingered in her large brown eyes. Petite in figure, she was stylishly groomed and seemed to be the most self-possessed person in the room. Only when the name of her missing sweetheart was alluded to did she lose her control. Then she wept.

Loretta Palmer was 20 years old when she met George Brown in Belleville four years ago. Both were regular attendants of the Methodist Episcopal Church and she taught a class in the Sunday school.

One day they secured a license and at the dinner table announced their marriage.

A railway conductor who boarded at the Palmer home seemed interested in the unhappy young woman and showed it by numerous attentions.

Mrs. Brown's condition grew so serious that it became necessary to place her in a sanitarium. She was taken before Judge John B. Hay, in the county court, and adjudged insane by a jury.

During the trial, Judge Hay restored to her her rights and she secured a divorce from Brown by default.

friend and he bade her farewell at the station when the sheriff accompanied her to the state asylum at Anna.

This man, it is said, made numerous trips to Anna and brought back reports that the girl's mental condition was improving. It was understood that when she recovered and her divorce was obtained, they would be married.

Three months after her entrance to the asylum she was discharged as recovered. Judge Hay restored to her her rights and she secured a divorce from Brown by default.

The preparations for the wedding of Mrs. Brown and the time-proven friend were made. Then man leaved a house and Mrs. Brown began gathering her trousseau. One night during the last week in October the man left for Huntingburg, Ind. Business was alleged as the reason and he promised to be back in a few days.

The bride-elect waited four days, then she went to Huntingburg. She met the man's sister, who told her, she says, that he could not marry her, as he had a wife living.

Crushed by the revelation, Mrs. Brown suffered sympathetic friends to place on a train and she managed to reach St. Louis before the collapse came.

Since then, her relations testified, she has been in such a state that it was necessary to place her in restraint.

Dies After Day's Work
While returning from work Gus Kieff, aged 16, of 3224 Missouri avenue, fell dead of heart disease at Twelfth and Pine streets Thursday evening.

BRAIN FOOD
Is of Little Benefit Unless It Is Digested.

Nearly everyone will admit that as a nation we eat too much meat and too little of vegetables and the grains.

For business men, office men and clerks, and in fact everyone engaged in sedentary or indoor occupations, grains, milk and vegetables are much more healthful.

Only men engaged in a severe outdoor manual labor can live on a heavy meat diet and continue in health.

As a general rule, meat once a day is sufficient for all classes of men, women and children, and grains, fruit and vegetables should constitute the bulk of food eaten.

But many of the most nutritious foods are difficult of digestion and it is of no use to advise brain workers to eat largely of grains and vegetables where the digestion is too weak to assimilate them properly.

It is always best to get the best results from our food that some simple and harmless digestive should be taken after meals to assist the relaxed digestive organs, and several years' experience have proven Stuart's Dyspepsia Tablets to be a very safe, pleasant and effective digestive, and a remedy which may be taken daily with the best results.

Stuart's Dyspepsia Tablets can hardly be called a patent medicine, as they do not act on the bowels nor any particular organ, but only on the food eaten. They supply what weak stomachs lack, pepsin diastase, and by stimulating the gastric glands increase the natural secretion of hydrochloric acid.

People who make a daily practice of taking one or two of Stuart's Dyspepsia Tablets after each meal are sure to have perfect digestion, which means perfect health.

There is no danger of forming an injurious habit as the tablets contain absolutely nothing but natural digestives; cocaine, morphine and similar drugs have no place in a stomach medicine and Stuart's Dyspepsia Tablets are certainly the best known and most popular of all stomach remedies.

Ask your druggist for a fifty-cent package of Stuart's Dyspepsia Tablets and after a week's use note the improvement in health, appetite and nervous energy.

Overcoat Goodness....

Does not alone depend on the cloth that enters into it. THE VITALS—which the eye never sees—play an important part in the construction of a good garment. The proper fabrics and trimmings, properly put together, are absolutely essential to insure shapeliness and service. We're as exacting about the inner features of our Overcoats as the outer ones—the trimmings, body and sleeve linings and general workmanship must be the best it's possible to produce to co-operate with the Overcoating material, so that its true excellence can be fully brought out. An overcoat is not bought every day—that's all the more reason why particular care should be exercised in its selection. Select your Overcoat tomorrow at Famous from assortments of thousands. The most ingenious craftsmen built them—their sterling character—elegance of fabric—excellence of workmanship and smartness of fashioning reflect the skillful handiwork of the master custom tailors. Famous is beyond doubt THE OVERCOAT STORE OF ST. LOUIS where the most generous Overcoat values in the city are obtainable for man, youth or child.

Our Men's Overcoats at $25

Attain the very same of Overcoat excellence—Their graceful contour—their suave and genteel expression reveals the artistic touches of the tailored-to-order kind at double our prices. The richest Overcoatings were employed in their building—the fashionable Kerseys, Vicunas and Cheviots in the subdued plain colors or the more lively mixtures—medium or long styles—plain or belted backs—fashionable dressers will find them even surpassing our highest praises—these Overcoats are indeed marvels of value at....

KRATZ EXTRADITION TRIAL COMMENCES

Evidence of Fugitive's Offense Will Be Presented to Mexican Ju- dicial Authorities

LAWYER'S AID IS SECURED

St. Louis Sheriff Forms Acquaintance of Prisoner's Lawyer and Asks Interview With Kratz

BY C. C. RIDER.
Staff Correspondent of the Post-Dispatch.

GUADALAJARA, Mexico, Nov. 30.—The hearing of the Kratz extradition case began before District Judge Leopoldo Vicensco in the penitentiary at 10 o'clock this morning.

The hearing was in the penitentiary instead of in the courtroom to save Kratz the necessity of being taken through the streets by guardsmen.

Kratz was represented by his attorney, Senior Fernando Castanos.

Chief Desmond and Sheriff Diekmann were present with their attorney, Senior Manuel F. Chavez, one of the most distinguished lawyers in Guadalajara.

Senior Jesus F. Rodriguez, district attorney, represented the Mexican government.

The hearing was first set for 3 o'clock yesterday afternoon, and all the parties except Kratz were present. But Judge Vicensco announced that certain orders from Kratz will be given three days in which to outline his defense. It is predicted that he will contend that the requested extradition would violate certain rights granted to him by the Mexican constitution.

and makes the promise for Kraiz more favorable. The decision of the court, however, is subject to review by the President. Charles E. Carroll is here, and is closely watching all movements. After the postponement of the hearing yesterday afternoon, Desmond and Dickmann were introduced to Senator Castanos.

Dickmann expressed a desire to see Kraatz, and Castanoe intimated that he had no objection to the meeting, and that it might be arranged if Kraatz was willing to receive the St. Louis delegation.

Kraatz has said as an excuse for not receiving Desmond and Dickmann that his attorney advised him against meeting them.

Senator Castanoe gave the St. Louis officers a cordial invitation to call on him.

STRAW FOR THE MANNA OF ISRAEL

Shower of Food for Animals Falls in California to Delight of Po.

REDDING Cal., Nov. 20.—Redding was treated to a decided novelty in the way of a shower. Large and small pieces of straw fell thick and over the town, and half an hour the pieces came down like flakes in a winter snowstorm. There was scarcely any wind.

About 3 o'clock in the afternoon a few pieces of straw, resembling pieces of hay that had been stacked, were noticed falling in various parts of town. In a few moments there was a veritable shower of the stuff, and for half an hour long and short pieces of the straw came twisting, tumbling down, apparently from out of the clear sky. Some of the pieces were eight inches in length, others as short as one inch, and some came down as chaff from a threshing machine. Where the stuff came from no one has as yet discovered. It is possible a good-sized whirlwind struck a hay or stubble field several miles east of the city, and the wind carried the particles to this city. The shower was pretty general all over the city, and in some portions the straw came down thicker

Drifts of the feed were formed by its being blown against buildings and in certain neighborhoods poorer persons were busy long after the shower ceased with pitchforks and wheelbarrows, storing the stuff in mows for feeding cows, goats, etc., looking upon the visitation as an act of Providence.

College Resented Professor's Statement That Negro Was South's Greatest Man Next to Lee

Special to the Post-Dispatch.

DURHAM, N. C., Nov. 20.—Because in an article in the South Atlantic Monthly he said that with the single exception of Gen. Robert E. Lee, no Negro in this country is the greatest man the South has produced in the last century, Prof. Spencer Bassett of the college here, where he is a professor, created such a stir among the friends and supporters of the college that he has been practically forced to resign.

His resignation has been given to the board of trustees, who will act on it at a special meeting. There is little doubt that the college will accept his resignation.

Parents of students had threatened to withdraw their sons from the college to protest against the statement, and Prof. Bassett continued as a member of the faculty.

JAPAN NOT ANXIOUS TO FIGHT.

Premier Katsura Says Only Few Really Want War

TOKIO, Nov. 20.—Count Katsura, the

"The outer world," he said, "is told of a man who shouts for war, but the nine and nine who do not are not mentioned."

"If war should be forced upon us that is another thing. We are prepared to defend our national existence at any moment."

"I feel sure there is no danger of any such emergency, but we are ready."

"Japan demands that the sovereign rights of the United States be respected, and that the 'open door' for trade should be maintained. In this Great Britain and the United States support each other, and I think Russia will or can do the same."

"But, of course, I cannot tell you anything about the negotiations now taking place."

THE COST OF IT.

Looked at from every point of view the canal treaty with the republic of Panama is a most profitable bargain.

It insures the speedy building of the canal, which is demanded not only in the national interest, but in that of the whole world.

It dispels all doubts of the neutrality of the canal and insures an efficient police by giving sovereignty to the United States of a strip said to be eight or ten miles on either side of the ditch.

The fact is good. It is a triumph of material progress at least.

But what is the cost?

We have forfeited the confidence of every Spanish-American. We have created a precedent which may be a pretext and excuse for political enterprises infinitely less worthy in themselves than interoceanic waterways. The transaction has lowered the tone of public life by subordinating moral considerations to cold-blooded calculations of material advantage. The moral prestige of the American public character is hopelessly impaired and the "American mission," once supposed to be, to lead in the work of moralizing international relations, is now suspected by all the world.

The situation is what it ought to be. Let that be granted. It is an accomplished fact, and the fact is right. But there are two ways to do the right thing—a right way and a wrong way. And the penalty for taking the wrong way is always exacted.

Kansas hoodling is just as wicked as Missouri hoodling.

SCHOLARS AND POLITICS.

Lord Cromer, the British representative in Egypt, has surprised his friends and the rest of the world by publishing a volume of "uncommonly successful" translations from the Greek poets.

Sobody imagined that he knew Greek. He was supposed to be a commonplace but very able practical administrator.

In England statesmanship and scholarship often flourish together under the same hat. Gladstone was a master of languages, theology and history. Lord Salisbury was a chemist of considerable original power. Mr. Balfour is philosopher enough to doubt everything, even his own political policy. Mr. Morley is a man of letters. The late W. H. Lecky was a historian of authority. Mr. Bryce is a political philosopher and writes useful books. There is hardly a single English public man of note, except Mr. Chamberlain, who has not some scholarly aptitude and achievement to his credit.

In this country the scholar in politics is for the most part the failure in politics. Few scholarly men try to enter public life and fewer still succeed in it. The diplomatic service has been distinguished by some such characters, but no great scholar has ever tenanted the White House. The nearest approach to scholarship in the presidency was John Quincy Adams. Mr. Roosevelt has written histories, but he probably would not claim to be a scholar, using the word in the sense that it applies to Charles Eliot Norton.

Lord Cromer's case is especially interesting, because he was educated at a military school, where Greek, of course, was not taught. He learned the language through sheer love of it. This makes a practical American smile. Fancy Richard Croker or Gen. Wood or Speaker Cannon learning ancient language for love of it!

A Boston woman visiting St. Louis declares she had no idea that St. Louis was so much like Boston. It is not a complete acknowledgment of our perfection!

"SAIREY" GAMP'S MRS. HARRIS.

When the epic story of President Roosevelt's reform of the postoffice department is fully made up and ready to go thundering down the corridors of fame for the enlightenment of an admiring posterity, the case of Miss Mildred Dall, the St. Louis office must of necessity constitute one of its most typical features.

Upon this Mrs. Mildred Dall has fallen the light of the strenuous one's condemnation. In the official report of Civil Service Commissioner Foulke, the President's personal friend, expressly chosen to make the St. Louis investigation, Mrs. Mildred Dall was repeatedly named as one who should be gotten rid of for the good of the service. She was apparently an arch-conspirator and trouble-maker—the wonder grew, indeed, that any good whatever could have been accomplished in the St. Louis postoffice with Mrs. Mildred Dall so busy at her work of mischief. Whereupon, she was formally and solemnly dismissed—exorcised with bell, book and candle, as it were, in order to purify the official atmosphere and enable the star-eyed goddess of reform to move and breathe and have her being in the local federal building.

The fact that no such person as Mrs. Mildred Dall has ever been in the employ of the St. Louis postoffice cuts no figure in the moral point of this story. Her stern "dismissal" from the service shows what would have happened to her if she had been where Mr. Foulke located her and guilty of the official sins charged against her. The case of Mrs. Mildred Dall, thereupon, contains a warning to faithless servants in the St. Louis postoffice. Tremble, ye derelict souls, lest the fate of this new "Sairey" Gamp's Mrs. Harris overtake you! Though officially headless from the first, she has, nevertheless, been officially decapitated and her mythical blood spilled in the arena of reform, as a libation to the gallery gods.

If the worst charge that Mr. Hawes can bring against Mr. Folk is that he has been irregular in his support of the Democratic machine, he cannot damage him much in the estimation of thousands of Missourians who do not regard party regularity as the highest civic virtue. Much as the St. Louis Democracy has done to improve the standards of municipal officials over that of the Ziegenheim administration, yet there are several things in the record of the party with which a good citizen cannot afford to be identified. If the Democratic candidate for governor must be a thick-and-thin machine man, the hope of reform in the state government from the Democratic party vanishes. It is impossible to gather figs from thistles.

ACT ON THE TERMINAL BILLS.

Surely no member of the Municipal Assembly would now stand in the way of the prompt passage of the terminal franchise bills in accordance with the terms agreed upon by the Business Men's League and the terminal railroads. The adoption of these bills is necessary to secure the great advantages embodied in the agreement—to place St. Louis on the railway maps and establish west side terminals. The prompt passage of the bills is necessary to assure the increased facilities in time for the World's Fair.

Delay in the bills will endanger and possibly defeat the excellent plans to handle the heavy traffic of the World's Fair period. The defeat of the bills would indefinitely postpone the increase of terminal facilities and the improvement of terminal conditions so largely desired by the shippers.

The House of Delegates should act upon the bills promptly and sensibly. All interests are now in harmony on this question. The business interests are a unit in demanding the increased facilities on the terms provided for in the new measure. Let us have action without delay.

If the provinces of Cauca and Antioquia secede and perfect a union with the republic of Panama, Colombia will be left without a single harbor on the Pacific. These two provinces extend from the boundary of Panama, on the north, to the Ecuador line, on the south, and include all of Colombia's western coast line. Hemmed in by Venezuela on the east, the remaining Colombian provinces would be a geographical and political nonentity.

The Kansas City Journal has greatly astonished many of its readers by an article in which it makes Tom Paine the author of "Home, Sweet Home." It says that he never had a home; that he was a widower, a divorced man, a reveler and a roamer, who, however, carried with him his longings for a home.

There is a disposition to suppose that there was considerable heated air in Uncle Joe Cannon's remark that the speaker is the servant and not the master of the House. Some already see in him another "czar."

It seems that the fighting in the Philippines is likely to last somewhat beyond Thanksgiving.

There will have to be special legislation for those burglars who are so vicious as to push the barkeep into the icebox when the mercury is down to 14 above.

A million or more of the Exposition visitors will be sure to want to be shown how it is that St. Louis is not in any county, and they will still be incredulous, after all that they shall be told about it.

Miss Dreyer Should Be Heard.

From the Springfield (Mo.) Republican.

While people will not expect the President to give much of his time to detective work, yet when a wrong has been done in the public service and it comes to the knowledge of the President he should see to it that it is rectified. And such is his strong sense of justice that no serious outrage would likely be left charged against the administration of the government.

Next Year.

"Oh, I am fairly going to live out there after the World's Fair is open!"
I can hear you say it now, O enthusiastic madam!

"I don't care what happens; the house may take care of itself, but I am going to see the Fair, whatever comes." you say, "Why, people will be asking us about it twenty years from now, and it would be ridiculous to admit that you lived in St. Louis during the whole six months of the Fair and never saw half of it. Absurd! I am determined to explore every corner of it, and I have already made it my business to do so."

He said, "All right; go ahead; don't mind me; I will get through all right." Now, isn't that lovely? He says he doesn't care that he will eat sandwiches every evening for six months, and that I won't have to come home till I get ready. We'll keep a girl during that time, especially to wash dishes and keep the house in order, and I am going to skip out to the World's Fair grounds just as soon as breakfast is over and I get the bird cage cleaned. Oh, I tell you the World's Fair is going to be the most wonderful thing that ever took place in the world, and I don't propose to miss a minute of it! A great exposition like this only comes once in a lifetime. The pictures and portfolios will be all right enough to keep in a view at first hand. So don't ever come out next spring or summer expecting to find me at home, for I won't be there. My permanent address will be "Missouri Building, World's Fair," and if I am not there you will find me standing on the big colonnade, watching the cascades and studying the physiology and anthropology in some of the foreign exhibits. Better send me a note a week or two in advance if you intend to call."

No doubt this is exactly what you think. It is fine to anticipate, fine to give your imagination free rein, and fine to fancy yourself in the midst of the tens of thousands of people of all nationalities who will be on the World's Fair grounds next year; but would you really delight in "living there"? Would it be a perennial pleasure to gaze on those vast buildings and those marvellous displays? Will you be physically able to stand the pressure? We shall see.

SCIENCE AND INDUSTRY

By way of illustrating the effect of poverty on infant mortality, a German statistician says that among the aristocratic circles in Berlin only 12 per 1000 of the children die before they reach the age of 5, whereas, among the poorest classes, the number of doomed children is 367 per 1000.

There is an increasing consumption of potato alcohol for automobile purposes in Germany, where at present five times as many potatoes are raised, in proportion to the population, as in the United States.

FOR THE YOUNG FOLKS.

A RACE WITH A TRAIN.

"They say that these are slow on their feet," said Billy Goose one day. "Now if I only had some one to ride on my back I believe I could beat a railroad train."

AN AWFUL POSSIBILITY.

A prophecy for Thanksgiving dinner, in relation to the youngsters of the family, is evident in George Hobart's "Lil' Verses for Lil' Fellers" (Harpers), from which the following, on "Tommy's Sunday Dinner," is taken:

Turkey! turkey! such a lot!
"Nen puttin' steamin' hot,
An' potatoes; stuffin' too,
Celery, and deers a few,
Lil' beans—but 'twas great!
An' I ate, an' ate, an' ate."

Firs' a drumstick, 'en a wing;
"Nen some dark meat, 'en some white;
Paw said 'at it wasn't right.
I was feelin' deers firs' rate,
An' I ate, an' ate, an' ate."

"Nen we had plum puddin', too,
Maw she said I'd have to do
Wif four slices; Paw said, "My!
Hate to be you by an' by!"
But 'at mince pie des was great!
An' I ate, an' ate, an' ate."

Firs' thing chased me was a sheep;
"Nen a lion chased me, too!
"Nen a tiger says, "Ray, you!
Des I'll start in wif your feet,
Lil' boys is good to eat!"

"Nen a big, black snake it came,
Says to me, "Wat, wat's your name?"
Told it Tommy, snake says, "Oh!
Des I'll eat you awful slow!"
"Nen I cried a dreadful lot,
Snake says, "Eat you, cry or not!"

"Nen I woke up 'er I saw
"Des was maw and 'er was paw;
An' the doctor shook his head,
"Indigestum!" doctor said;
"Get him all right by and by!"
Oh! my tummy hurtal—my, my!

"HOW TO EAT FUDGE."

Critic in Boston Globe.

You first grasp the pan or dish containing the poison with your left hand, while with your right you hold your shovel or any large article suitable for conveying the poison to the large cavity called the mouth. You then very carefully put some of the poison in your mouth and proceed to work your jaws up and down. Work as if your life depended upon it. Slow at first, but after you get used to the taste work faster.

After you have worked nine hours swallow the stuff, clean out the pan, go to bed and then send for the doctor. A horse doctor is better than a regular M.D.

Fudge can be used for many other purposes besides eating. It ground up and sprinkled around the sink it will be sure death to water bugs, flies, roaches and other insects. If rubbed on a dog it is sure death to fleas. Watch the dog carefully if he dies you put too much on; try again. The word fudge is from the Latin word "fudges," meaning death.

MISSOURI ODD FACTS

The Christian Endeavor Society has assumed the responsibility of educating a native boy in Japan. In doing so they have the privilege of naming the beneficiary. In honor of their late active and lamented member, Hayden J. McRobert, deceased, they have given their protégé his name.

A merry-go-round man at La Crosse got his leg caught in the cable of his machine. The crowd could hear the leg crack as it was broken in several places. The machine was clogged and brought to a standstill and several women fainted. The unfortunate man smiled wearily, wagged around and unstrapped a wooden leg, and announced cheerfully: "Get your ticket for the next ride."

An unique trial took place at Kahoka while the circuit court was otherwise engaged. It was a mock trial in which William Brumley was plaintiff and I. E. Shermernhorn, defendant. Brumley was suing for damages for calling him the "Klondike." He claimed damages to the amount of $100,000. A trial by jury was had and the jury found for plaintiff to the full amount of the claim. Brumley was ignorant of the fact that it was not a genuine trial, and on the following morning he went to Shermernhorn's store and demanded immediate possession, in accordance with the decree.

If it were possible to make an opening beginning at the north pole, passing through the center of the earth to the south pole, then drop a pound ball at the north pole, would this object fall, and would it ever become stationary?" Prof. A. M. Greene of Missouri University says: "If you could get a hole through the earth and let a ball drop from the north pole through this to the south pole, there would be a force pulling it toward the center of the earth. This force would continue to act until the ball passed through the crust of the earth, but with decreasing magnitude. The velocity acquired would carry the ball over the other wall of the crust and as soon as it entered that hole on that side the force of the earth (which would not increase as you went toward the surface) would pull it toward the center of the earth, and would now tend to destroy the velocity and the body would just come to rest at the south pole and then start back again, and if there was no air resistance it would keep vibrating back and forth. If there are any resistances such as air it will not quite reach the south pole, and on the next trip to the north pole it will go still less. In this way its travel will get smaller until it comes to rest just inside the crust of the earth, or at the center if the earth be solid. It may come to rest anywhere within the crust, for there is no force pulling within a hollow sphere from the shell. I hope this answers your question."

Little Mamie Wood of Paw Paw Corner died the other day and her death inspired these beautiful lines written by none other than Miss Ellabelle Mae Doolittle, the poet:

Little Mamie Wood,
The sweetest little girl,
She died so young and good,
With long golden curls.

She's flew to heaven overhead,
With the cherub angels soaring;
Two parents' eyes are red,
For her who has went before.

But do not sigh, mother,
And father, too, of course—
Some day you will discover
Her on a gold-shod horse.

At peary gates she'll greet you,
When you leave our United States,
Crying overboard you,
So quit it bereaved ones and wait.

The Bowling Green Times got up a corn show and offered the paper one year as a premium. The prospects seemed pretty fair until the World's Fair people botched and offered $50 in premiums for the best corn in Pike's. This was a terrible shock to Billy's corn and he had but five entries. It would take an airship to enable a country editor to reach an altitude of 28,000 feet.

Why House Help Is Scarce

To the Editor of the Post-Dispatch.

In answer to S. H., I would say that there is certainly a reason why women refuse to do housework. Women and girls prefer work which is considered honorable. The housegirl or woman is looked down upon simply because she does housework, and is not considered fit to speak to accepting when others are to be given about the work. The shop or factory girl is treated with a little consideration and she has evenings and Sundays to herself. Girls are expected to be the family scavenger and must do work which no real lady should expect some one else to do for her.

There are a few exceptions to the above rule but all will have to suffer as long as the present conditions exist. If the girl who would not be so afraid of soiling her hands and would treat the girl with the respect which she deserves, regardless of what her friends might think, all would be different.

Gingerbread for Newly Married Men

To the Editor of the Post-Dispatch.

C. E. B.: I read in the Post-Dispatch that you were a newly married man and wanted a recipe for gingerbread like your mother used to make. As I am 23 years old my experience is that gingerbread is very injurious to newly married men, so you ought to be thankful that your wife doesn't know how to make it.

Boys Who Work

To the Editor of the Post-Dispatch.

A Friend of Children wants to know where the children get proper clothing to appear in when employed in the business world. There are hundreds of mothers in this city who take the last dollar in the house to buy a cheap suit for their boy and put him in the stores that he may appear halfway decent, and when the child gets his week's wages his mother gets it back, having let the family go hungry for a week in order that her boy should have work. These mothers make these sacrifices in order to have the help of their children.

A law for compulsory education would not remedy the evils alluded to. You may compel parents to send their children to school, but how are you going to make them

THE MAN IN THE STREET

WE HAVE A FISH.

Those scoffers who have contended that fishing hereabouts was an idle and profitless occupation, are about to be put to shame. The World's Fair management has taken up the matter, and appropriated $25,000 for the purpose of proving to the world that we have a fish. It will be displayed at the Fair.

We have always believed that there was a fish in this vicinity, though we have never been able to establish our contention.

A $25,000 Display.

Then, we suspected that he made his home in Creve Coeur Lake, and a great many worthy citizens endeavored to catch him, but these efforts were sporadic and fruitless. No one fisherman ever had sufficient funds at his disposal to pursue the quest of the piscatorial specimen in a way to insure success, and after awhile all of them have become disheartened, and bought imported fish to lie about.

But now with $25,000 devoted to the purpose, and placed in the hands of that veteran angler, W. J. Ward of Stoddard County, that fish will assuredly be captured. In fact it had as well come in and surrender to the authorities. It is certainly worth the expenditure of $25,000 to capture this fish, for until it is done St. Louis fishermen will fritter away their incomes in the endeavor, and the aggregate of the amounts they spend, will be far more than $25,000.

Mr. Hawes' speech consisted of 15,000 words and several exclamation points.

They must have a different way of playing the game in Europe. A cablegram speaks of a king and queen as a royal pair.

A HORRIBLE PROSPECT.

This country has faced panics before, and viewed without alarm the new idea of a decline in the value of stocks. Even the multiplicity of strikes had no terrors for us, and we were not seriously perturbed by the run on the trust companies. But now each heart must stand still with dread; a great fear falls upon the nation. For the very existence of one of our time honored institutions is threatened. A turkey famine confronts us.

Commission men, than whom there are no more reliable sources of information, convey the startling intelligence that all the young turkeys last spring got their feet wet, and are now dying of pneumonia by thousands. This is indeed a calamity, the results of which are terrible to contemplate. Suppose the turkey should become extinct? How then could we properly return thanks to our maker for preserving our national existence? The turkey is the sign and symbol; the concrete evidence of our national gratitude for the political blessings we enjoy. It is to us what the fattest calf, or the young bullock without blemish was to the ancient Hebrews. And it tastes better. There is something in a turkey which naturally disposes the heart of the consumer toward gratitude. A well-cooked turkey fills the soul with a fine optimism, and a spirit of charity, that cannot be promoted by any other dish. Without the turkey, Thanksgiving day would be much like other days, instead of being set apart for the acknowledgement of divine favors. It has become that we are thankful because we eat turkey, not that we eat turkey because we are thankful.

Without the inspiring influences of the bird, we would be morose, unchristian and perverse on Thanksgiving day. Thus we would be in danger of forfeiting our immortal souls, for many of us, are Christians only on that day, and thereon atone for the sins of the other 364.

NEWS IN THE WORD OF BOOKS AND LITERATURE

Samuel Merwin, author of "The Road to Frontenac" and, with H. K. Webster, of "Calumet K." has written a new novel of a self-made college man in the dramatic settings of modern business life in the Michigan lumber regions, entitled "The Whip Hand." Mr. Merwin is a young man not yet in his thirties; born in Evanston, SAMUEL MERWIN.

Ill., he also attended Northwestern University there, and has since traveled pretty much around the world. Many of the experiences in the Michigan lumber regions are his and for a time, some years back, he had a desk with his publishers, Messrs. Doubleday, Page & Co., who now publish "The Whip Hand."

AN ODD CHRISTMAS GIFT.

Mrs. Ruth McEnery Stuart, knows the old-time southern negro well and in "George Washington Jones, the Story of a Christmas Gift That Went A-begging," she tells the touching tale of a very young and comical member of that honorable order, Little George Washington Jones' grandfather had been owned by "the quality" in slavery days and had been presented to his idolized "young mistress" as a Christmas gift. This story had become a family tradition, wherefore the grandson, forlorn and kinless, on a certain Christmas day, resolves to give himself to some "quality" mistress, even as his grandpa had been given. Humor and pathos mingle in the account of his search for a proper owner, worthy of his blood and breeding, and the tale is one to be read with sincere appreciation, especially by all who have knowledge of the negro folk of a generation ago. A happy ending, with George Washington Jones comfortably settled for life, leaves the reader with a smile on his lips and emphasizes the fact that the book itself constitutes a Christmas gift that need not go a-begging for a grateful recipient. (Henry Altemus & Co., Philadelphia.)

REVENGE AND MYSTERY.

New Orleans of the adventurous days before the Louisiana Purchase is the scene of Mrs. M. E. M. Davis' novel, "The Little Chevalier" (Houghton, Mifflin & Co., Boston), wherein is told a story of much dash and spirit.

The Marquis de Vaudouville was then governor of the French province of Louisiana, and, in far away Paris, bold young aristocrats of France still regarded this province as an El Dorado, waiting to enrich them should they consent to a few years of perous exile. It is true that John Law's fraudulent Mississippi bubble had burst ere this, but its glamour still attached to Louisiana. Comes then to the chief city of the province the handsome and stanch-hearted Vicomte de Valdeterre, hero of Miss Davis' novel.

But De Valdeterre was seeking revenge, even more than fortune, searching, in fact, for the grim and deadly duelist, Valcour de la Roche, who had slain his father years before. It is this quest which creates the story told by Mrs. Davis, accounting for the mysterious "Little Chevalier," the fascinating Diane de la Roche, the perplexing romance in which De Valdeterre becomes involved and much else of entertaining interest. It is a clever tale, with a baffling mystery not solved until its close, and holds the reader's close attention to its telling.

"THE CIRCLE IN THE SQUARE."

"The Circle in the Square" plays a large part in Mr. Baldwin's novel of southern life, "The Circle in the Square." (A. S. Barnes & Co., New York) and a negro uprising furnishes the dramatic climax of the story.

It is a vivid and exciting tale, rich in quaint southern characters and full of local color. The aristocracy of a little southern town constitutes the "circle" in the "square," of which the courthouse is the official adornment and this social set numbers Fairfaxes, Berkeleys and Palgates among its representative families—truly an aristocracy not to be questioned.

Outside the pale of the "circle in the square" are the "wild Morgans," restricted because of a splendid act of self-sacrifice by one Shan Morgan, through which Clay Berkeley, afterwards governor of the state, profited immensely. The story, however, concerns itself with the fortunes of the younger Shan Morgan and Clay Berkeley, thus antagonized and both loving the same girl, sweet Sarah Page. Inherited hatred, coupled with rivalry in love, inevitably creates many stirring situations and leads to an absorbing finish, which, however, may not be revealed in a review of the book if author and reader alike are to be treated fairly.

Always behind the placid and easy-going life of the "circle in the square" is the forbidden political shadow of a possible negro dominance. Reconstruction days have passed, but there is a powerful negro vote in the state, and the whites are frankly pictured as preventing, by intimidation, the casting of this vote. It is a political necessity, from their point of view, the conditions pictured being similar to those presented in Thomas Dixon's novel, "The Leopard's Spots," and almost equally sensational. Race is aligned against race, the world-dominating Anglo-Saxon resolved upon white supremacy, the negroes sullen and vengeful, dreaming dreams of a negro control of affairs political.

Gov. Berkeley's campaign utterance in favor of an educational requirement is found to deprive the negroes of the right of franchise precipitates a race conflict. The blacks are led to believe that this is but the first step in an organized movement to return them to slavery. They hold secret meetings, determine upon an uprising, and finally one dark night they invade "the square," setting fire to the homes of the governor and other prominent citizens, killing and being killed in the course of the riot. Happily, the uprising is soon crushed with the assistance of the militia, but it has served the author's purpose and furnished the climax and turning point of his story. Shan Morgan, though accused of the murder of Clay Berkeley, stands forth as the hero of the riot and the novel hastens to a consistent ending. "The Circle in the Square" promises to help to enlighten them.

be a widely discussed story. It is artistic, even in its melodrama. Politically, it appeals to many thousands of readers. In literary style and finish it sets a higher standard than did "The Leopard's Spots." It will be interesting to note if it scores anything like the success achieved by the Dixon novel.

ABOUT MARIE CORELLI.

"Marie Corelli; the Writer and the Woman," is a sympathetic study of the life character and labors of a much misunderstood and much maligned woman. The authors, T. F. G. Coates and R. S. Warren Bell, both English writers of considerable note, have started out with the evident intention of setting Marie Corelli right before the world, or at least of informing the world concerning Marie Corelli, so that it may be better prepared to judge her character and her work, and they have left nothing unsaid that would be in her favor. Admirers of this remarkable woman who could write so courageously and well, and in whose work he recognized "a power working for good," Marie Corelli was the adopted daughter of Charles Mackay, an English poet who was her father's well known friend to 40 years ago. Her early life was influenced by such men as Dickens, Thackeray, Sir Edward Landseer and Douglas Jerrold, and from her infancy she displayed a love for all things literary. This volume shows her at every stage of her literary career, with the various interesting stories concerning her and the various novels of which she is the author, together with 15 full page illustrations of scenes pertaining to her life. (Published by G. W. Jacobs & Co., Philadelphia; 352 pages.)

DARWIN'S SON WRITES FOR HARPER'S.

Charles Darwin's second son, George Howard Darwin, is one of the contributors to the Christmas number of Harper's Magazine. His article deals with "The Birth of a Satellite." Mr. Darwin, who is a Plinian professor at Cambridge, England, is also a great-grandson of Josiah Wedgwood, on the maternal side. He is the author of many valuable scientific treatises, chiefly upon astronomical subjects.

WITH A TROPICAL FLAVOR.

"Homer d'Everet," by Barbara Yeckton (Dodd, Mead & Co., New York), is a brightly told story of the fortunes of an English family in the West Indian island of St. Croix. The picturesque life of the tropics is presented with faithfulness due to the fact that the author's early days were passed amid the scenes which her novel is laid, and the story is out of the common by reason of this unusual setting. It is nevertheless, a "quiet" story, depending mainly upon character-drawing for its appeal to popular readers, and should be appreciated by readers who have grown weary of the "strenuous" school in fiction. Just how important a class these readers form is one of the things which publishers, and the fate of "Homer d'Everet," speaking from the commercial point of view, may help to enlighten them.

GEN. GORDON'S REMINISCENCES.

Next to the memoirs of Grant and Sherman, the "Reminiscences of Gen. John B. Gordon" is probably the most interesting book dealing with the great events of the American civil war.

Gen. Gordon has not written a history, but his work gives moving pictures of the essential features of all the great battles of the war, and these pictures are so strongly drawn in every line that the reader does not have to be skilful in military knowledge to understand exactly what transpired and grasp the cause of victory and defeat.

The author is generous in his praise of nearly all of the great leaders on each side. The exceptions are Longstreet and Early of the Confederates and Sheridan of the Federal army. To Longstreet's failure to carry out Lee's orders at Gettysburg is attributed the Confederate army's defeat. For this failure, according to Gen. Gordon, there has never been offered a reasonable explanation.

Gen. Gordon finds nothing in Sheridan's Shenandoah valley campaign that should titillate the famous cavalry leader to the very pedestal upon which his countrymen have placed him. Gordon commanded a corps of Early's army which opposed Sheridan in the battle of that campaign. He cites records to show that Sheridan was victorious and with an army outnumbering the Confederates 3 to 1, should have destroyed

Early's troops months before the latter's blunder after his victory at Cedar Creek, made the famous ride from Winchester a part of history. Gen. Gordon pays a tribute to the military genius of Rosecrans, placing him in the front rank of the great Union commanders.

But the portion of the author's work which will appeal to the reader who is interested in the human side of the war period, is Gen. Gordon's bits of personal experience, his impressions in battle and his observations of famous officers as well as obscure private soldiers at times of great peril.

(Reminiscences of Gen. John B. Gordon, published by Charles Scribner's Sons, New York.)

THE CHRISTMAS DELINEATOR.

The Delineator for December, out today, comprises 240 pages and will have a first edition of more than a million copies; 720 tons of paper and 49 presses working 25 days were required to print this mammoth issue. It contains exquisite color work, clever stories, strikingly illustrated articles, charming fashions and papers by experts on topics of interest to every department of the home. Especially noteworthy features are short stories by Richard Le Gallienne, Andrew Lang, W. A. Fraser, Albert Bigelow Paine and Harriet Prescott Spofford. In addition there is an illustrated paper by Gustav Kobbé describing the life of Mrs. Emma Eames in her Italian home, with a full-page portrait in colors of the great American prima donna, and the third installment of "The Evolution of a Club Woman," a narrative of clubdom that is causing much comment in feminine circles. Verse of the highest character and the work of the most famous illustrators round out the number.

Ernest W. Clement has written "A Handbook of Modern Japan," which A. C. McClurg & Co. of Chicago published. It was his endeavor, Mr. Clement tells us, "to portray Japan in all its features as a modern world power." He has produced a book full of information concerning the modern side of this unique nation, interestingly presented. Valuable maps are a feature of the illustrations. It is in no wise controversial, but just as it pretends to be a handbook, a guide.

Very pretty are the Troubadour Tales which Evalen Stain has written and very dainty the illustrations by Virginia Keep.

Marfield Parrish, B. Brownmeyer and Edward Edwards. The book is printed for the Boba-Merrill Co. of Indianapolis by Braunworth of Brooklyn, N. Y., and a clever printing it is. The use of a red tone to lighten the lights in the half-tone pictures is very effective. The lines are told in simple language and are aimed at nice children who have been so good that they deserve a pretty gift. The tone is romantic, but never in the least suggestive of impropriety.

MRS. WARD AT WORK ON A NEW NOVEL.

Harper & Bro. announce that they will publish in Harper's Magazine in 1904, a new novel by Mrs. Humphrey Ward, which will immediately follow the conclusion of Miss Mary Johnston's romance, "The Morgesons." Mrs. Ward's novel will be illustrated by Albert Sterner, who is now abroad in consultation with the author. It will be recalled that Mr. Sterner illustrated Mrs. Ward's "Eleanor."

OUT OF JAIL INTO HOME AND A JOB

James Robinson, the Youth Who Was Held Seven Months, Finds Position.

James Robinson, the 17-year-old boy who was held in the city jail from April 3 until Nov. 14, is to-day perhaps the happiest and most grateful boy in St. Louis. He has a position at Concordia Turner Hall. The following letter, which was published in the Post-Dispatch Tuesday, explains how Jimmie got it.

To the Editor of the Post-Dispatch:

If you find James Robinson, who has been detained in prison since April 1, I will give him a trial, regarding his honesty as a porter and in general housework about the Turner Hall, with a chance for advancement if trustworthy. Will give him board and room and 25 per month to begin with, respectfully,

I. J. BAUER.

Jimmie saw this letter and applied for the place. He is now busily employed for the place. When Jimmie was released he went first to the home of Mrs. Morgan, 119 North Tenth street, Post St. Louis, whom his cell mate, James Short, had told him would give board and lodging until he could find work.

"I was there three days," said Jimmie, "and did odd jobs about the house to help pay for my board."

"I think I went everywhere in St. Louis looking for a job," he continued, "but got nothing. When I saw the letter in the Post-Dispatch, I went to Mr. Bauer and he put me to work."

Since then many persons have sent me clothes and offered to give me work. It was pretty cold when I got out of jail, and my clothes were all thin, but I didn't think about that because I was so glad to be out of that place.

"The guards were all pretty good to me, but a jail isn't a very nice place to be, even if you are treated well."

NEBRASKA'S POSTAL SCANDAL SPREADING

More Rumors of Purchase of Postoffices Investigated and Indictments Are Expected

Special to the Post-Dispatch.

OMAHA, Neb., Nov. 20.—With the resumption by the grand jury of the hearings of charges against Senator Charles H. Dietrich, disclosures of importance were made in connection with other instances of alleged bribery besides the Hastings case.

From Orleans, Alma, Oxford and Arapahoe came dozens of witnesses today. From some of them was learned for the first time just what Senator Dietrich's alleged offense in these towns were.

Merchants and other men of standing affirmed that other postmasters have purchased their appointments and other indictments are almost certain to be returned.

At least two of the cases now pending before the grand jury, it is stated, are expected to develop testimony of a much more startling nature than the Hastings case.

Considerable evidence has already been given before the grand jury in two of the pending postoffice investigations. The de-

ANNOUNCED HIS OWN MURDER IN MESSAGE

"I Have Been Shot," Wired Telegrapher, and They Found Him, Slain by Robbers

WILLIAMSPORT, Pa., Nov. 20.—"I have been shot and am dying."

This startling message was flashed in to the chief dispatcher's office at Jersey Shore last night by William Clendenin, operator at Brewster's Tower, on the New York Central railroad, five miles below this town. Half an hour later the message was verified by policemen who rushed to the place on a special engine.

Clendenin's dead body was found on the floor of the tower, under the desk on which his instruments were fixed.

In addition to the wound from a bullet which the tragic message had referred to, his head was crushed. The work had evidently been done after the shooting. The theory is that the operator was killed for the money he was believed to carry.

The alternating operator at the tower is known to carry regularly with him between $400 and $500. It is believed that the murderers got the mes-

GOVERNMENT SHOPS MUST BE UNIONIZED

American Federation of Labor Unanimously Votes This Position in Considering Miller Case

BOSTON, Nov. 20.—The American Federation of Labor has disposed summarily of the "open shop" issue, as raised in the case of William A. Miller, now employed in the government printing office at Washington, and the Miller case itself, by unanimously declaring in favor of the union shop in government as well as in private enterprises, and by petitioning President Roosevelt to re-examine the evidence offered against Miller, and, if verified, to remove Miller from the service.

Although the resolution adopted presented the federation's view on both "open shop" and the Miller case, the issues are kept entirely distinct.

The re-examination of the Miller case is not requested because Miller is a non-unionist, a circumstance formerly urged as reason for his removal, but because the federation believes Miller is "totally unfit to be in charge of working people."

NO REGULARS FOR COLORADO

President Declines to Send Troops to Overawe Miners

WASHINGTON, Nov. 20.—The President today, turned down a request for federal troops from Governor Peabody of Colorado. Governor Peabody asked for troops to "suppress disorder" in the Telluride mining district, where he said he could not control the situation with the militia at his command.

The law, in the opinion of Mr. Root, presently provides that troops can be sent into a state only on the request of the legislature when it is in session or can be called together, only in case of an insurrection which the state troops cannot suppress.

It was decided to send no troops unless the law is fully complied with.

Confide in a Woman

How Women Act While Consulting a Male Physician.

A woman is sick; some disease peculiar to her sex is fast developing in her system. She goes to her family physician and tells him a story, but not the whole story. She holds something back, loses her head, becomes agitated, forgets what she wants to say, and finally conceals what she ought to have told, and thus completely mystifies the doctor. Is it any wonder, therefore, that the doctor fails to cure the disease? Still, we cannot blame the woman, for it is very embarrassing to detail some of the symptoms of her suffering, even to her family physician. It was for this reason that years ago Mrs. Lydia E. Pinkham determined to step in and help her sex. Having had considerable experience in treating female ills with her Vegetable Compound, she encouraged the women of America to write to her for advice in regard to their complaints, and, being a woman, it was easy for her ailing sisters to pour into her ears every detail of their suffering. In this way was able to do for them what the physicians were unable to do, simply because she had the proper information to work upon, and from the little group of women who sought her advice years ago, a great army of her fellow beings are to-day constantly applying for advice and relief, and during the last year many, many thousands every month have written and received valuable advice and help.

Mrs. Pinkham, in Lynn, Mass.,

Nowhere except at Lydia E. Pinkham's laboratory in Lynn is there such an amount of information at hand to assist in the treatment of all kinds of female ills, from the simplest local irritation, to the most complicated diseases of the womb. The records of all the many hundreds of thousands of cases as to which advice has been asked are there kept on file by Mrs. Pinkham, and from this vast experience she is able to do more than the family physician for ailing women. Any woman, therefore, is responsible for her own suffering who will not take the trouble to write to Mrs. Pinkham for advice. The testimonials which we are constantly publishing from grateful women establish beyond a doubt the power of LYDIA E. PINKHAM'S VEGETABLE COMPOUND to conquer female diseases.

Hall Came's Somber Spirit Pervades

His Dramatization of "The Eternal City"

Mr. Clara Bloodgood's coming to us in "The Girl With the Green Eyes" ought to put us in a proper mood for Thanksgiving day. While there is some diversity of opinion as to the merits of the psychological play Mr. Pich has given Mrs. Bloodgood, there is nothing but harmony in the criticism of her acting and the charming appearance she makes on the stage.

This is the first time St. Louis has seen Mrs. Bloodgood. We sincerely hope it may not be the last. While we had heard quite a good deal about her and expected to find her very capable, she has proven a revelation for which we were hardly prepared. Her portrayal of those feminine whimsicalities which have kept the man guessing since Eden is easily the most natural acting seen in St. Louis this season.

The Imperial's stars are having a run of misfortune. Nellie McHenry, who was there recently in "M'Liss," was severely burned in a fire in the stage at Omaha Tuesday night, and Howard Hall, who is at the Imperial this week in "The Man Who Dared," tripped and fell while snatching

IOWA BANK ROBBED.

Thieves Take $1000 From Vault and Escape on Handcar

MARSHALLTOWN, Ia., Nov. 20.—Compelled to remain in their homes under threat of being shot, the residents of the village of Green Mountain, ten miles north of here, heard three explosions before daylight this morning. The explosions wrecked the Green Mountain bank building. Three robbers ran through the streets, warning the people to keep indoors and shooting wherever a light appeared. The robbers secured $1000 and escaped on a handcar.

TROLLEY KILLING A MYSTERY

No One Has Appeared at City Hospital to Identify Body of Victim

DESCRIPTION OF MAN

KILLED BY STREET CAR

Age, about 40 years
Five feet nine inches tall
Weight, 160 pounds
Sandy beard and mustache
Wore dark brown suit, blue shirt and tan shoes.

An unidentified man, who was struck by a Cass avenue car at Seventh and Walnut streets, died at the city hospital Friday morning without having regained consciousness. At the time of his death no one had called at the hospital to identify him. The man attempted to cross Walnut street diagonally in front of one car and ran in front of another. His body was dragged several feet. The result was fractured and he sustained several scalp wounds and contusions of the face.

MRS. J. J. HARTNETT.

Princess, Dainty Saddle Wearer, Plays Part in St. Louis County Romance, Although Her New Mistress Had Long Been Acquainted With Her Master.

Miss Annie McLaughlin, champion equestrienne of St. Louis County, fell in love with John J. Hartnett's pretty blue mare, Princess. Princess loved her master; her master loved Miss McLaughlin.

How Miss McLaughlin is Mrs. Hartnett, and Princess, abating no jot in her allegiance to her master, is quite in love with her new mistress, and the three form a very happy family out at Clayton, where Mr. Hartnett is business manager of a weekly paper.

It would be a much more romantic story if Princess had introduced Miss McLaughlin to Mr. Hartnett. But such was not the case. The young man and the young woman knew each other long before Princess was born to a love for green grass and a pretty step under saddle or before a rig. But Princess, nevertheless, played her part.

Miss McLaughlin was known as one of the best horsewomen in St. Louis County.

She had been riding, driving and training horses since she quit dressing dolls, and perhaps a little before that time. She has ridden blue ribbon winners at four St. Louis horse shows at the St. Louis Fair and at the St. Louis County Fair. She is a lover of horses, and not afraid of the wildest animal that ever bucked under a saddle or kicked at the face of a dashboard. Her father is a stockman at Claymont, her brothers are horse trainers and she is both. Mr. Hartnett is not his wife's equal either as a trainer or rider, but at that, he is a famous horseman and a great judge of horse flesh. That was shown when he got possession of Princess—a mettlesome, pretty-formed black mare of aristocratic breeding, breezy, speedy and excellent style. Miss McLaughlin admired his taste. Mr. Hartnett appreciated her admiration. After that it was an easy matter to progress from friendship to love, and from love to the marriage license office, thence to the presence of Father Edward Casey of St. James' Catholic Church, and thence into matrimony.

Miss Agnes Fleming was bridemaid, and Matthew McLaughlin, a brother of the bride, was best man at the wedding.

No one in St. Louis should be without a savings account. Mississippi Valley Trust Co. allows 3 per cent per annum on such deposits and secures the same by capital, surplus and profits of $3,300,000.

Mrs. William L. Long of 3404 Pine street gave a tea Thursday afternoon between the hours of 4 and 6 o'clock for her daughter, Miss Margaret Long, one of the season's pretty debutantes. Miss Julia Maffitt was of the receiving party. The rooms were all prettily decorated with white and pink chrysanthemums and southern smilax. Miss Long was in white chiffon, richly embroidered, and Miss Maffitt wore white tulle and lace. The hostess was in a black thread dress and rose point garniture. Some of the guests were:

Misses Lucile Paddock, Lily Lambert, Isabel Helcher, Lee Louie Chouteau, Mary Allen, Frances Wickham, Louise Knapp, Messrs. Fred Semple, Ewing, Robert Holmes, Jack Kearney, Guy Paddock.

Young ladies and gentlemen are invited to open savings accounts with Mississippi Valley Trust Co., which allows 3 per cent per annum on such deposits and protects the same with $3,300,000 capital, surplus and profits.

TRIED THEM ALL.

Then Wore Three Pairs of O'Sullivan's to Make Sure.

Claude Hoffman lives in Wyckoff, Minn., and is a very careful man. He personally investigated every claim of every dealer for every rubber heel before committing himself, then after testing the uniformity of O'Sullivan's by wearing three pairs, sent the following to the O'Sullivan Rubber Co.:

"Your heels are perfect. I have used three pairs of them and can say they are far superior to any other make, as I have tested nearly a dozen different kinds."

Here is comparison for you. It pays to take care in buying rubber heels—nothing is quite so worthless as rotten rubber.

Send the $5 to O'Sullivan Rubber Co., Lowell, Mass., if dealers try to substitute. But inquire of the dealer first.

Of Course

We are glad to have the good qualities of our Clothing understood. We court comparison with other makes, as the readiest way to convince you of its superiority.
